(Times News Services)
OTTAWA — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Diefenbaker rocked and talked Wednesday about global problems.
The prime minister swayed in a swivel chair. The president sat in a rocking chair specially provided by Mr. Diefenbaker.
"A good deal of movement by both parties was evident," reported Ivan D. White, deputy assistant secretary of state for the United States who was an on-looker.
He told a press briefing that the U.S. group headed by Mr. Kennedy was very pleased at the informality of the 2½-hour talks in the prime minister's office.
Mr. Diefenbaker "with some foresight" had arranged for the rocking chair which Mr. White said was a made-in-Canada job and looked to be a plusher model than those common in the U.S.

LOCKPORT, N.Y. — A family in a nearby community has a unique method of discouraging peddlers. A large, white headline on the front lawn bears the epitaph: "Here Lies a Salesman."

PARIS — A pilot at Orly Airfield hurried to inform police Wednesday night when he heard a strange buzzing coming from the washroom of a plane he was about to fly to Africa. Police found an electric razor that someone had left plugged in.

LONDON — A Labor Member of Parliament Wednesday attacked the use of British soldiers as servants in households of the Royal Family.

William Hamilton, conducting a one-man campaign against the expense of maintaining the Royal Family, was told by War Secretary John Profumo in the House of Commons that the 11 soldiers employed in the royal households are regular soldiers of the household brigade.

They have been so employed for periods varying from between one and 30 years and were paid by the war office, Profumo said.

Hamilton asked him: "Is it not ludicrous that at a time when there are moans on all sides of the House about the shortage of recruits that this kind of man should be engaged in menial tasks in royal households?"

Profumo said there is "nothing ludicrous" about the matter. "They are all volunteers," he added. "Eight are employed in clerical jobs and three as personal orderlies."

LONDON — A Labor Member of Parliament Wednesday poked fun at the first words of Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin when he returned to earth.

The Russians said Gagarin declared on landing: "Report to Premier Khrushchev and the party that the mission is complete."

Frank Tomney told the House of Commons: "What do they think we are over here? It is too funny for words. If I had gone round the world and landed by parachute on my feet in a plowed field, I would have said: 'Thank Christ for that.'"

EPERNAY, France — A champagne industry official bubbled over with indignation Wednesday night at a Soviet suggestion that "instant champagne" will revolutionize the business.

The Moscow magazine Soviet Russia said the French have bought patent rights to a Soviet method to produce sparkling wine in three weeks instead of three years.

"Absolutely fantastic," replied Abel Medard, director of the Inter-Professional Committee of Champagne Wines.

"If we wanted to, we could produce it in a week. But it wouldn't be a champagne worthy of the name."

"The Soviet method is like a sausage-making machine. Put a little juice in at one end, and some sugar and yeast, and out the other end comes sparkling wine."

'Secret Appointment' Query
Makes Finance Chief Bristle

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Stepler, newly-appointed press officer at the Canadian high commissioner's office in London, is being paid $12,000 a year and an $8,000 allowance, the Commons was told Wednesday.
When Frank Howard (CCF-Skeena) asked whether this had been "another secret appointment," Finance Minister Fleming bristled and said the CCF member was making a nasty insinuation—perhaps on the government and certainly on a highly-competent civil servant.

INTENT NOT SHOWN
Store Acquitted
On Label Charge

A two-count charge of removing labels showing goods had been made in Japan against Scurrah's Ltd., a city women's wear shop at 728 Yates, was dismissed Wednesday in city police court.

Magistrate William Ostler dismissed the two counts on a legal technicality and a lack of proof of intent.

The firm had been charged with destroying and removing the labels from an imported sweater showing it had been made in Japan.

Mayor Percy Scurrah, president, director and a shareholder in the company, was put on the stand by defence counsel, Lloyd McKenzie, and he denied any direct connection with store management.

"Did you know, on or about Nov. 30, 1960, that the store was merchandising articles made in Japan?" asked Mr. McKenzie.

"Absolutely not," said the mayor. "In fact I was amazed that the Japanese were making that type of garment."

Mayor Scurrah said he held the mentioned positions in the company but "not in any sense of the word" had been active in the firm's management in recent years.

The technical flaw in the Crown's case, said Mr. Ostler, lay in the absence of the words "and does believe" between "the informant has reasonable and probable grounds..." and "that Scurrah's Ltd." in a portion of the charge.

This, he said, failed to give him proper jurisdiction in the case.

APPEAL POSSIBLE
However he also pointed out that there had been no evidence advanced by the Crown to prove beyond reasonable doubt, intent on the part of the accused company to conceal the information on the label.

An appeal by the Crown could be made but depends on further word from the federal department of internal revenue in Ottawa.

He testified he visited the store Nov. 29, 1960, and found two sweaters on the counter which bore the labels "Newport of Canada." One also carried a label with the word "Japan" on it.

Store manager, Gordon Jennings, said the sweaters sometimes arrived from the Canadian importers without the "Japan" labels and sometimes customers pulled them off before having the garments wrapped.

He also said there was a high rate of return on the sweaters, which then almost invariably lacked the "Japan" label but were put back on the shelves.

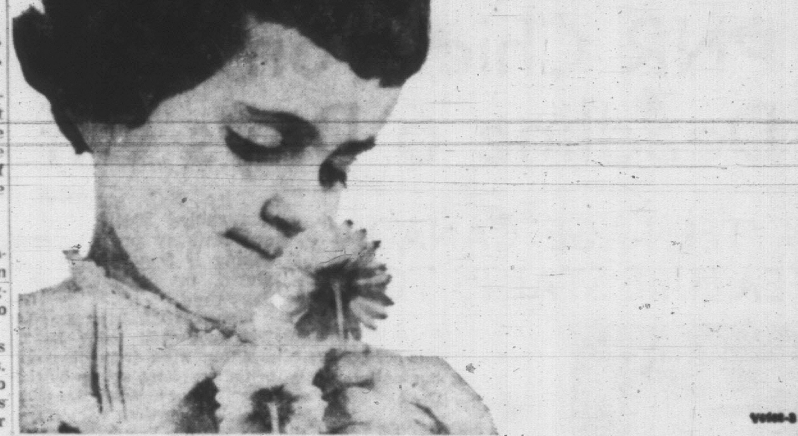

It was store policy, he said, to inform customers of any article's country of origin.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE
'Lifetime's Work'
Down With Barge

(Compiled from CP)
VANCOUVER — Five men were rescued from a blazing Alaskan power scow late Wednesday shortly before the vessel sank in Johnson Strait near Alert Bay.

The rescue was effected by the Northern Navigation vessel Northern Prince.

The blaze in the scow Chief from Kodiak, Alaska, began in the engine room. Crew members were unable to get below before they were rescued and the vessel carried on for some time under its own power before it exploded and sank.

The scow was loaded with foodstuffs for Alaska.

For skipper Bill Shimmel, 44, of Seattle, 20 years of work went down with the barge.

Shimmel watched helplessly as his $500,000 vessel sank off Broken Islands, 20 miles south of Alert Bay, 150 miles north of here.

Shimmel said his barge was carrying between $200,000 and $300,000 worth of cannery supplies and food from Seattle to Naknek in Bristol Bay, 300 miles southwest of Anchorage.

"I worked as a prospector, a fisherman and a laborer for 10 long years, always saving for the barge," he said. Finally, I bought it in 1950.

"Since then, I poured all my money back into the Chief, like the $135,000 refrigeration unit I installed.

"Now it's all gone."

"I'm a farmer with a small holding in the Lower Island. I think that I, and a lot of others like me, deserve more consideration from Ottawa. George Hahn has pledged to do all he can to prevent 'dumping' of potatoes and small fruits from the United States. I'm also in favor of his plans for federal assistance for drainage, too. After all, the federal government has supported drainage projects on the Prairies and in the Maritimes. I believe previous federal experience will pay off. That's why I think George Hahn will do a lot for us in Ottawa."

NO 'DOORMAN' AT LIBERAL MEETINGS

Liberal candidate David Gross Wednesday attacked Conservative and Social Credit parties for "invitation only" meetings at which guest speakers were protected from the public.

Mr. Gross told an Esquimalt-Saanich campaign meeting of about 30 persons at Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall that the invitations had been sent out by Conservatives when visiting cabinet ministers came to town and by the Socialists for Premier Bennett's speech Friday night.

The Bennett invitations say "kindly present at the door."

"I have heard it said that they call themselves the party of the people but you can't get into the party unless you are one of the right people and have an invitation," said Mr. Gross.

"If someone wants to come to a Liberal meeting, he doesn't need a ticket."

Mr. Gross said people should be able to question visiting ministers on the government record, a primary by-election issue, but the Conservatives "shut the door."

"I always thought you had the public at public meetings," said Mr. Gross.

'VOTE NOW—PAY LATER'

Liberals Score Budget Delay

The Conservatives are conducting a "vote now—pay later" campaign in Esquimalt-Saanich, Liberal finance critic William Benidickson said Wednesday.

Both he and Liberal candidate David Gross attacked the federal government for holding back its budget until after the four by-elections May 29.

"It is traditional to have your budget before your election," said Mr. Gross.

"But this budget obviously hasn't got much joy in it for the people."

NO ACCOUNTING

Mr. Benidickson, MP for Kenora-Rainy River, told the meeting of 30 persons in Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall.

"We are not going to get a federal accounting until these by-elections are complete."

He said the Liberal party does not blame the Conservatives for all the country's economic ills; but the government had completely failed to right them.

What action it had taken on unemployment was too little and too late.

Its efforts at tightening money supply seemed to be aimed at making a balanced budget rather than helping the unemployed.

Interest rates had been pushed to their highest level since the R. B. Bennett Conservative government of the 1930s; taxation and expenditures had also soared.

'FALSE OPTIMISM'

At the same time, he accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of glossing over the country's problems, and making it "almost heresy" to say unemployment existed.

"False optimism is as bad as unnecessary pessimism," said Mr. Benidickson.

Former M.E.A. for Victoria George Gregory also spoke at the meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker has "loused things up good and proper," he said.

The Conservatives had designed policies to assist industry and business in eastern Canada and levied too much on B.C.

"Tory times are tough times as every taxpayer knows," said Mr. Gregory.

240 4-Hers Jampack Fair For Busy Day

A total of 15 4-H clubs from the Malahat South district took part in 4-H Day activities at Victoria Exhibition Wednesday.

About 240 youngsters had a day off from school and busied themselves with demonstrations and shows for most of the day.

Altogether there were 14 demonstrations spread over Tuesday night, Wednesday afternoon and evening. Demonstration winners were as follows:

First prize, Saanich Home Arts 4-H Club, "Let's Sew for Sue"; second prize, Luxton 4-H Poultry Club, "Egg Grading"; third prize, Saanich 4-H Holstein Club, "Milking a Cow"; honorable mention, Saanich Jersey 4-M Club, "Daily Routine in Caring for Our Jersey Calf."

TROPHY PRESENTED

The top club was later presented with Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce Challenge Trophy by Mrs. Georgina Wilson, wife of Jaycee president Al Wilson.

Panel of judges for the demonstration were Rod Bailey, 4-H Supervisor for B.C.; Jim Allin, supervisor for the department of agriculture; Mrs. Georgina Wilson, and Donald E. C. Anderson.

"This is the biggest and best 4-H Day we have ever had," said agricultural show chairman David Nightingale. "Everything went very smoothly."

"If one more 4-H member had turned up we wouldn't have known where to put him," said another official.

During the evening all the youngsters taking part were treated by Jaycees to a dinner held in the curling rink.

'Socialist' Says Others Capitalists

A Socialist party of Canada official said Wednesday Esquimalt-Saanich campaign meetings are not drawing big crowds because other parties all offer the same policies of capitalism.

George Jenkins was speaking at Shawngnan Lake Hall in support of Socialist candidate Don Poirier.

Even the New Party, "said Mr. Jenkins, is promoting an old 'fairy tale that state control of capitalism is socialism."

The New Party platform is basically no different from the other parties, he added.

Mr. Poirier said the conflict between Russia and the West was rivalry of capitalist ruling groups.

He said the Socialist party wants to abolish the monopoly on wealth and produce goods and services "solely to satisfy human needs."

Hotel Agrees To Strike Talks

TORONTO (CP) — Striking workers at the Royal York Hotel — the Commonwealth's biggest — called for peace talks Wednesday and the management gave a cool acquiescence.

On the 23rd day of a walk-out of 1,200 employees, the Hotel and Club Employees Union (CLC) told the CPR-owned hotel it is ready to resume negotiations, broken off before the strike.

Up until this move, both sides had been holding off making the first overture.

'Copter Service To Need Subsidy

Hope for a Victoria-Vancouver helicopter service starting this fall has faded under the impact of route and operational studies carried out by Okanagan Helicopters Ltd.

Glenn McPherson, president of the flying company which announced plans for such a service late last year, said Wednesday that some form of subsidy will be necessary because of the competition from the B.C. government ferries and higher helicopter operating costs than were originally expected.

Mr. McPherson said that while initial studies had set one-way fares at between $10 and $12, further checking had revealed that fares would have to be about $15 each way with a 75 per cent load factor.

BCE Bus Service May Go—Mayor

Mayor Percy Scurreh Wednesday supported a proposal for a comprehensive study of transit service problems before the city makes up its mind on a B.C. Electric request for cut-back of service and routes.

The mayor repeated fears expressed frequently by Greater Victoria civic officials that the company will drop its bus services when the current franchise expires in 1967.

"We know what they're going to do," he said. "They're going to turn it back to us. That's the last thing we want." Asked if he would favor a subsidy in an effort to persuade BCE to renew its franchise, the mayor replied:

"Some way has to be found to keep the municipalities out of the bus business."

William Mearns, BCE vice-president in charge of Vancouver Island operations, said abandonment of the transit system has been considered "many times" but the company has not made any decision yet.

Why Mr. Bennett Is Angry

MR. BENNETT IS ANGRY AT the newspapers, this one in particular, for having opinions about the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election.

His anger is not difficult to understand. Mr. Bennett brought a mainland Social Credit candidate to this Island riding and he obviously is not doing very well in the campaign. Realizing his mistake too late, Mr. Bennett takes his disappointment out on the newspapers. It is proper for the political parties and Mr. Bennett to have opinions about elections and the public business, but not, apparently, for the newspapers.

Mr. Bennett would have a valid reason for complaint if the newspapers failed to report, without comment, what he and his lieutenants are saying. The first duty of the newspaper is to print the news of all sorts including the opinions of politicians, whether the newspapers regard them as sound or not.

On that score Mr. Bennett probably has less grounds for complaint than any politician in Canada. Everything he cares to say, his most casual observations, his frequent outbursts of temper and his attacks on the newspapers are faithfully reported.

Wise in the ways of the press conference, Mr. Bennett has tried the newspapers as a massive, free propaganda agency day in and day out. That is his privilege, as it is the duty of the newspapers to report him. This The Times will continue to do as accurately and impartially as it can.

But the opinions of a newspaper, confined to its editorial columns, are a different matter. There the newspaper has a duty to say what it thinks. No reader has to agree with it. Many do not.

On this page we are not running a popularity contest or seeking votes as Mr. Bennett, and the politicians of other parties, are doing, and quite properly. And when great public issues are at stake in elections we see no virtue in non-partisanship, since it is only through parties, in our system of government, that any great public issue can be settled.

Behind the City's Facade

THE THIRD PRELIMINARY report of Victoria's urban renewal study indicates that the downtown district presents a reasonably good face to the passer-by. Behind the cosmetics, things aren't nearly as attractive.

"The most startling fact about the downtown area," writes Mr. A. H. Roberts, director of the study, "is that approximately 208,000 square feet, or an area equivalent to more than twice the floor space in the B.C. Electric Building is derelict. This space has been vacant for more than two years, it is generally unusable for structural reasons and no serious attempt is being made to rent it."

Add this to the director's comment on places where downtown residents are living: "With the exception of the main hotels and a few other buildings, the quality of residential accommodation in the downtown area is poor and the rate of vacancy is fairly high."

Together this draws a picture of waste, if not improvidence, which no city can stand and remain healthy.

The unused space reflects a vicious economic circle: Because of low demand, rents are inadequate to improve premises. Because they are not improved, they attract few tenants.

The problem here differs in substantial degree from that of many other areas. The buildings in the downtown region are mainly brick,

Non-partisanship, the refusal to express any opinion, the attempt to please everyone, is easy and may often be popular and profitable. It is also cowardly, an abdication of responsibility by a public man or a public institution like a newspaper.

Mr. Bennett complains not only because this newspaper has an opinion about national politics in a significant by-election but because it published, without comment, a public opinion poll taken in Esquimalt-Saanich by a reputable agency. We published the poll because it is news and we would have published it whatever its figures showed.

Actually it shows a great doubt among the local voters, nearly 35 per cent of whom say they are undecided. Among those who are decided the Liberal candidate Mr. Groos, has a slight lead.

What all this will mean in the final vote we have no idea. It is difficult if not impossible to judge the outcome of a vote split four ways. But Mr. Bennett's high moral indignation because a poll has been taken and published is rather amusing.

If the poll had shown his candidate at the top instead of the bottom Mr. Bennett would have been shouting the figures from the rooftops. There is no politician in Canada who is so given to electoral prophecy.

In the last two national elections, he predicted that Social Credit would win about a hundred seats and soon afterwards would form the government of Canada.

Social Credit having been eliminated entirely from Parliament, he is still predicting its recovery and in his mind's eye sees a Social Credit government at Ottawa headed by no one knows who—perhaps Mr. Bennett?

For him the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election was to be the first stride in this march to power; for if he cannot win a seat immediately within the range of his daily propaganda and his powerful party organization, where can he hope to win?

No wonder he is angry when the electors do not seem inclined to vote themselves into a party of one man, the opposition of a single voice at Ottawa.

While attempting to reassure the Europeans of Algeria about their future, he left no doubt about his convictions that Algeria would be independent one day, whatever happened. The Evian conference would consequently be concerned with the form this independence would take.

Ideally, the negotiations would produce agreement on an association between France and a sovereign Algeria which General de Gaulle and the nationalists would both support in the self-determination vote. Once such an agreement was reached, the practical problems of organizing the vote could be easily settled.

Obviously what is at stake is the future of the Europeans in an independent state. It is on this question that the nationalists appear least likely to make concessions. The presence in Algeria of one million Europeans dominating the country economically and politically has always been the chief obstacle to a peaceful solution. With-or at least brick shells. They do not fall down as quickly as timbered structures and hence they might remain in unprofitable existence for many years, to the detriment of the business district.

At the same time they occupy land which should be highly valuable because it enjoys downtown amenities.

Eventually—and the eventuality may be closer than most people think—they will have to be replaced by structures which more effectively serve the purposes required in a downtown area.

New development, as the report points out, is being hampered by a lack of parking space. "At the present rate," it says, "it will take 15 to 20 years to meet the backlog of parking spaces in the downtown core area."

This is not a happy over-all picture. It isn't intended to be. The studies are being conducted to reveal the facts of Victoria's physical condition. The most recent report shows that condition to be worse than it appears to the person passing on the sidewalk.

If the downtown area is to be revitalized—and it must be to preserve tax structures and general commercial health—these facts need careful examination by all our citizens. They are the people who will eventually decide what action must be taken to stop the rot, a rot that is their personal business not only from a tax standpoint but for the preservation of the core of British Columbia's capital.

Our Money, But Not Our Secret

TRANSPORT MINISTER Balcer has asked Parliament to approve a token vote of $1 to cover his multi-million dollar aid to shipping bill. In effect Parliament is being asked to buy a pig-in-a-poke, and sign a blank cheque for it.

Why will the government not say what this program of aid to ship-building is estimated to cost? Surely Mr. Diefenbaker's administration is not launching out on a program of subsidies with no idea of the probable cost? If it has an estimate why does it not reveal the figure to the people through their parliamentary representatives?

How many ships does the government anticipate will be built under this scheme? How far will the program be extended? How much public money is the government prepared to spend?

Mr. Balcer is following the Fleming style of delayed announcement. The finance minister refuses to bring down the federal budget before the byelections on May 29, although it is already overdue. And the transport minister refuses to reveal the extent of a plan for subsidies which will run into many millions of dollars.

This is odd conduct for public servants.

The Green Gamble: in an Attitude of Prayer

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

WE hear a lot these days from economists and statesmen about the timidity of the Canadian investor. He won't put his money into his own nation's resources. He won't take chances but sells his industries to the venturesome, enterprising Americans. Canada, we are told, is becoming a country of economic cowards. But all this depressing talk overlooks the most important citizen of Canada. I mean, of course, the gardener.

Hutchison

In Victoria it should not be necessary to argue the virtue and importance of the gardener, the craftsman who alone has built this best of all possible cities, the only artist who has made a unique contribution to the nation's culture.

THESE facts are obvious to natives and strangers alike but the inward nature of the gardener, his reckless investments, his wild gambling spirit, his small profits and huge losses, his infinite toil and inequitable rewards are little understood.

The stranger comes here at this time of year and, once past the splendid architecture and priceless ruins of our central business district, sees a single unbroken garden stretching to the edge of the wilderness. He cries out, as well he may, that Victoria must be the loveliest town in the world and he envies our soil, climate and natural advantages over all other places.

THE bitter irony of such opinions does not escape the gardener but he is too old and tired to discuss it. He knows but does not bother to remark that all this beauty was not provided by nature but in spite of her. He knows that if nature were allowed to take her course Victoria would soon be a jungle of rank vegetation or of concrete like other cities. He knows that he is fighting nature every inch of the way from dawn to dark, twelve months a year.

LET the tourists moan in envy and swoon in admiration. We know what we know and keep our secrets. We have made our long investment of money and labor, we have worked through autumn and winter to produce this brief dividend of spring not, as the Tourist Bureau likes to imagine, for commercial advantage—a sordid notion beneath any gardener's contempt—but solely for our own peculiar pleasure, soul-satisfaction and noble lunacy. And all we ask for a capital expenditure beyond reckoning in money is the chance to look for a few weeks at the picture we have painted.

EVEN that passing chance is difficult to grasp.

In the first place, this year's weather has spoiled most of the spring. The annual show has been rained out. The plants may grow, the flowers bloom but in the judicial gardener's eye they cannot be seen except in sunshine which alone can bring their colors to life.

In the second place (that great occupational hazard of the craft) the gardener has hardly a moment to spare for observation. The leisurely tourists may rave; the gardener is fully occupied and lives on hands and knees, in an attitude of prayer, his eyes on the ground, his attention fixed hypnotically on a few square inches, his mind narrowly focused on essentials, his body twisted permanently out of shape.

Why, I know a gardener who saved up a hundred dollars by stinting himself of drink, tobacco and all the necessities of life to buy ten magnificent azaleas but he didn't see their bloom until it was already fading. He had been watching the weeds.

The same man, distracted by the menace of caterpillars and rust, absently sprayed his roses with weed killer and exterminated them all in the space of five minutes.

The risks of gardening in this age of chemical science are tragic to think about; the chances of success, the prospects of reward less than in any business swindle.

You will not hear the gardener whine like other investors. Amid the ruins of his roses, he plants new ones, purchased at the cost of life's necessities. On the altar of his odd religion he sacrifices his wife, his children, his fortune and himself. Still, we are told that Canadians are timid investors, afraid to gamble. Yes, Canadian perhaps. But not Victorians.

could not hide the fact that the failure would be equally disastrous for France.

Although he chose to describe the recent military insurrection as "an incident," he held out little hope of preventing a new coup, short of reaching an Algerian settlement.

He said that the emergency powers he has assumed were intended to reinforce the authority of the state, but gave no indication how he would use them. Some observers conclude that he will, for instance, limit civil servants' right to strike, though this would seem a curious way of countering subversive action in the army.

In looking towards the future, General de Gaulle indicated there would be a much greater measure of state control over economic development. State planning would have much wider popular appeal, he said, and would take into account the views of trade unions. He proposed this co-operation in developing an economically powerful France as one way of dealing with the political divisions in the country. But again the plan was vague, and it ignored the fact that political divisions are largely based on contradictory economic interests.

The president repeated the threat to cut off Algeria without a penny, "regroup" the Muslims and Europeans who wish to remain French, and repatriate the 400,000 Algerians working in France.

If there is no agreement at Evian, either an association or on voting conditions, then the general will revert to his earlier plan of constructing an autonomous "Algerian Algeria" without the rebel National Liberation Front (FLN). This would be tantamount to a continuation and intensification of the war, and probably the FLN acceptance of direct Communist assistance.

The Distant Tape

GIVEN a few warm days in this part of May, some of our old armchair athletes struggle into our faded blazers and wander out to school track meets.

It's good for us, gets us out into the fresh air, limbers up our recollections and generally lends us a feeling of importance when we talk expertly to people who don't know very much about track and field either.

We stand around the infield, squint toward the starting line and often don't see much more than a blur of color where the runners are lining up. Then we assume an air of absorbed concentration, commenting on the style of the present crop of sprinters and middle distance men, comparing them to earlier generations. We remember when...

Stott

Under the circumstances, it seems a pity this display of talent will exclude the secondary schools not included in the Inter-High Sports Council jurisdiction.

There was a time when University School, Brentwood College, Shawnigan Lake and possibly others participated in the inter-high, originally sponsored by the Victoria YMCA.

It's a matter of record that University School, in the era of Reg Bristowe and Ronnie Dalziel did extremely well against the best the other high schools could produce. And a boy called McNeill managed to push Brentwood to the front in at least one meeting.

With Dave Mackenzie putting Brentwood together again at Mill Bay, it seems logical to invite him to work on a team for the event a year or two hence. Dave ran for Scotland in international competition and will probably be interested in seeing his boys enter as good events as are held in this locality.

According to current reports, we won't be making many comparisons between John Valiant and the majority of his predecessors. Archie tells me John is the best middle distance prospect we've had around here in years. Archie should know. He helped bring Bill Dale along to the fastest half mile on the Pacific Coast when Bill was rated among the continent's best men at that distance.

Still, there'll be plenty of opportunity for comment on the other boys and how they shape up against the youngsters we used to know as high school kids—Joe Addison, Bob Hutchison, Cliff Salmont and others who left Victoria tracks to compete in Empire and Olympic Games.

Locally, I'd guess that the inter-high sports provide the best index of potential in this community. The boys and girls who compete in that event have the opportunity to show their abilities against their peers under excellent conditions. Many of them have caught attention in the meets of previous years and received the extra coaching their natural capacities justified.

It will probably be the same this year. No doubt Hutchison, Bruce Humber, Harry Mitchell, Archie and a lot of other pretty competent judges of running ability will be there to make their assessments.

There may have been compelling reasons to limit the inter-high to public schools in other years. I never agreed with those reasons, but I wasn't a voting member. Whatever the reasons, they seem less important to me than the re-establishment of the meet on the widest grounds possible now. Why keep out young runners from the age group competitions which could lead to their development?

The Greater Victoria inter-high is a natural. Schools as far north as Duncan could bring down teams without much transportation trouble. There wouldn't be the objection raised to bigger regional contests at this time, since the meet would not interfere materially with examination preparations. Nor would it demand heavy financial outlays for anyone wishing to take part.

Also the inter-mingling of public and private high schools would have a democratic touch.

Not that the public schools are practising a variant of apartheid. But they ought to look at what they are practising and see that no unsavory label is attached to it.

First Negroes Elected In U.K. Protectorate

LOBATSI, Bechuanaland (Reuters)—The first Negroes were elected Wednesday to the legislative council of this British protectorate in south-central Africa.

The 10 Negroes, elected by a 32-member Negro electoral college, joined a council of 15 appointed and elected whites and one Asian which administers the 275,000-square-mile territory bordered by the Rhodesian Federation, South Africa and South Africa's mandate territory of South-West Africa.

Among those elected was Seretse Khama, a former chief-designate of the 100,000-member Bamangwato tribe. Khama was exiled by British authorities in 1950.

He was allowed to return to the protectorate as a private citizen in 1956. He married an English girl, Ruth Williams, during his exile in Britain.

Two of the four Fathers of Confederation became prime ministers—Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper.

Stronger NATO Kennedy's Goal

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP)—President Kennedy Wednesday dangled before North Atlantic powers the possibility that he might eventually agree to turn the 15-country alliance into an independent nuclear force.

But before he gets to that stage, he says, he wants to see the alliance meet its responsibilities and commitments in providing conventional arms. At the rate of present commitment, the conventional goals may not be met for years.

Perhaps realizing this—despite his plea that strengthening conventional capability must be given the highest priority—the president is ready to provide the alliance now with five Polaris atomic-missile submarines, and more later.

In 12 years the alliance has been weakened by international political bickering and by diversionary military commitments of at least one NATO member—France.

On paper the NATO powers agreed to set up the equivalent of 30 military divisions. Actually in the field are perhaps less than half that number.

And Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain has warned there is "unease" in the alliance, because control over nuclear warheads rests with the United States and Britain.

It was clear from Mr. Kennedy's remarks that he was seeking a step-up in arms and non-nuclear weapons not only from overseas associates but also from Canada which has an air division and an army brigade overseas.

Apparently Prime Minister Diefenbaker has given the president no pledge of any Canadian commitment on entering the 21-country Organization of American States or the provision of economic aid to Latin America, as Mr. Kennedy urged.

DIEFENBAKER ON DEFENCE:

'Each Depends on Other'

OTTAWA (CP)—Interdependence of Canada and the United States in defence was emphasized by Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday in his introduction of President Kennedy to the Canadian Parliament.

"Each must depend upon the other and both must be joined in co-operation," he said.

"To follow any other course is suicidal blindness."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada cannot provide for adequate defence by herself, and the U.S. cannot defend herself without Canadian co-operation and the use of defence facilities in Canada.

No country alone could meet the challenge of world Communism. But the combined power of the North Atlantic allies, with 400,000,000 people and a gross national product four times that of the Soviet Union, gave the West great strength.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

Wider unity and co-operation in defence, economics and political organization was needed in NATO. It was a price that all freedom-loving nations must pay.

"The prize of co-operation may be freedom itself," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He also said that co-operation among nations must be taken a step further, into outer space.

"We face the sober fact that without international control of space the future will be even more perilous than the present."

The prime minister described the president as "a new but renowned leader of the free world, a good neighbor and friend."

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Shades and Shades of Shading

Most books on gardening mention the need for providing artificial shade to young seedlings and newly set plants but we seldom find an explanation of shading as it applies in the horticultural world.

Complete darkness, or near darkness, is to be avoided because green plants require the sun's rays on their leaves in order to manufacture food. Plants from which sunshine is excluded become pale and weak, and their final condition is sometimes worse than it would have been were they left unshaded.

Jack

Commercial plant growers seek what is known to them as "moving shade," a term rarely used by home gardeners.

Essentially, it is broken sunshine which moves over the plants as the earth rotates, the plants being subjected to alternate periods of sun and shadow.

This effect is obtained by using shades made of laths so spaced that equal widths of sun and shade fall on the plants.

The laths are always placed north and south so that the position of the strips of sun and shade move from west to east. In this way any given plant beneath the shades will have possibly 20 minutes in full sun followed by partial shade, then 20 minutes full shade, and another short period of partial shade before again having full sun.

This principle should be applied to greenhouse shading and the shading of individual plants newly set in the open garden.

Greenhouse shading should be splattered, or in distinct bars up and down the glass, and for outdoor plants four to six narrow pieces of wood on the sunny side are better than a solid shingle.

Solid wooden shades also direct the heat they gather from the sun on to the foliage of the protected plants, whereas slat shade permits air movement which carries away the heat.

'Give Indian Chance To be Good Citizen'

REGINA (CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas Wednesday urged Saskatchewan hotelmen to have patience in dealing with problems created by allowing Indians access to licensed beverage rooms.

Addressing the Saskatchewan Hotel Association annual convention, the premier said the government knew when such legislation was passed it would cause trouble for a period of time.

"We are having this trouble," he said, "because we are reaping the harvest of 50 years or more of making the Indian a second-class citizen."

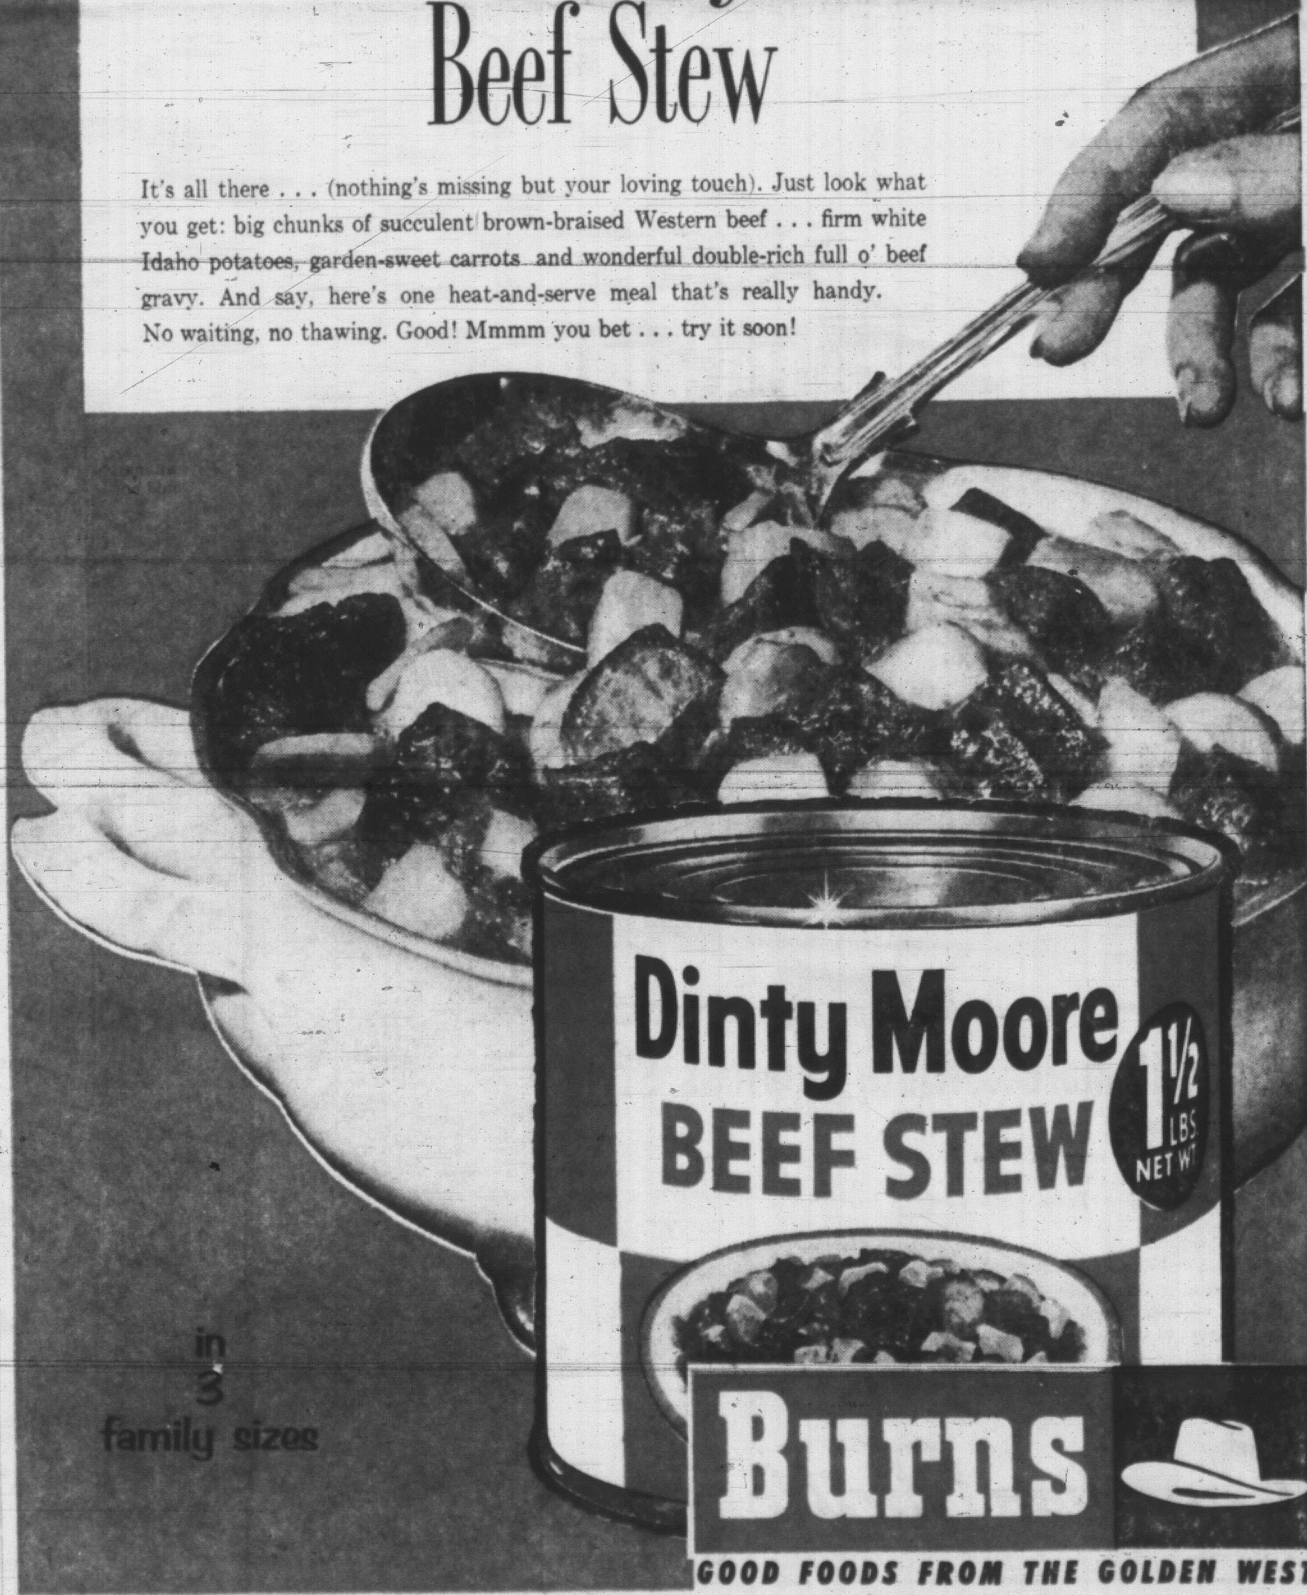

"We are going to have to make up our minds whether we are going to keep the Indian bottled up in a sort of Canadian apartheid or whether we are going to let him become a good citizen."

Allowing Indians access to liquor outlets is the start in allowing him to become just like any other citizen, the premier said.

"Indians haven't had the opportunity for advancement that white men have and it's our responsibility to give them that opportunity. This will take some time. They themselves are conscious of their own responsibilities."

NORTH COWICHAN COUNCIL

Group Threatens Petition In Sewer Vote Acted Upon

NORTH COWICHAN—A "It is in the hands of this other areas voting on similar council to kill the proposed bylaws," said Reeve D. C. "Whatever you do you are Morton, "but it would be going to be unpopular with a wrong of us to do so with lot of people," he said.

Two weeks ago ratepayers passed by a vote of 62-32 a $132,000 bylaw for the installation of a sewer system to serve the Townsite district adjacent to Duncan.

The Wednesday delegation, led by John R. Neen, presented a petition signed by 70 residents protesting against the result of the bylaw.

Reeve Donald C. Morton agreed with them when they said they had a second petition ready for the minister if they got no satisfaction from council.

"I think that's the action you should take," he said. "It will give the others who voted 'yes' their chance to raise a petition."

Mr. Neen said there were people in the sewer area who could not afford the additional cost, that reports of streets affected were "misleading," and that the bylaw was passed by a pressure group from the streets affected by flooding last January.

"The rest of the Townsite residents are being asked to subsidize them," he said.

Reeve Morton said the bylaw had been widely and accurately publicized, and that "anyone who didn't know what was going on wasn't looking very hard."

Council upheld a previous decision to raise its share of the cost of the proposed district hospital—$512,685—from that portion of the municipality in School District 63.

This action will exclude Chemainus, but include the communities of Westholme and Crofton.

Others responsible for the hospital are Duncan, $186,334; Lake Cowichan Hospital Improvement District, $527,960; and Koksilah Valley Hospital Improvement District, $367,010. Balance of the $3,655,586 required will come from federal and provincial—government grants.

All four districts will vote on their bylaws June 10.

Protests were sent to council by Chemainus Hospital Board, which asked that Crofton and Westholme be excluded from the tax area, and from Chemainus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce, which opposed the split. The chamber said, though, if the division had to be made, the two communities should be in the Chemainus Hospital District.

SOCRED MEETING AT LUXTON

Delay of Columbia Power Not B.C.'s Fault—Kiernan

There is "no delay" by British Columbia in fulfilling its share of the Columbia power project, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan told an audience of 14 Wednesday night at Luxton Hall.

Speaking in support of George Hahn, Social Credit candidate in the May 29 Esquimalt-Saanich federal by-election, he said the province actually had gone ahead with its work just as quickly as possible, "despite what they say in Ottawa."

"There were three plans affecting B.C., and it was not until the agreement was reached in January that the province knew which of the three would be chosen," he said in defence against charges that the province is dragging its feet on the project.

SURVEYS COSTLY

"The surveys will cost from $4½ to $5 million," he said. "Until the plan was settled there was no justification for expensive surveys."

"You can't decide this afternoon to build a dam, and come up tomorrow with $1 million worth of blueprints. But Ottawa won't tell you that."

He said B.C. had been badly hit by unemployment, and placed 90 per cent of the blame on federal government financial policies.

"That would not excuse us from not doing our best about unemployment despite Ottawa's blundering," he said, listing B.C. Hydro, PGE Railway, and the government ferry system as projects which have furthered development of the province.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, after disposing of two over-exuberant hecklers, cited the debt reduction program of the provincial government, revision of pension acts, and its economic policies as examples of what a Social Credit government can do.

Mr. Hahn reiterated his demand for a larger share for British Columbia in the federal national defence and public works contracts.

"With 10 per cent of the population, surely we deserve 5 per cent of the contracts instead of the 1½ to 2 per cent we get now," Mr. Hahn said.

"We are better off than the Maritimes, and don't want to take business from them, but I abhor seeing Ontario and Quebec getting the lion's share, and well above their proportion of these contracts."

He defended his candidacy here although he comes from Surrey, where he resigned as reeve to take on the campaign.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

The nurse opened the door of the room on the fourth floor, south wing of Royal Jubilee Hospital. She walked across to the bed nearest the window. "Mr. Keats," she said. "There's someone to see you."

Gordon Keats, 66 March 21, lifted his massive grey head, fixed steel-grey eyes on the visitor and held out his hand.

A reporter, in the pabulum league when Mr. Keats organized the Western Canada Hockey League, clasped it willingly.

"That's a strange position, for a hockey player to be in," I said.

"I wasn't in it very often when I played," he said, wryly.

Very few people rendered horizontal the hockey player, Gordon Keats.

Many tried. "I've been worked over by experts" in the 35 years the boy they called the "Iron Duke" wrote history in ice rinks from Calander, Ont. ("I used to play near the house where the Dionne quintuplets were born") to Edmonton, Chicago, Detroit, Tulsa, Victoria and way points.

How did he feel?

He rubbed his hands, twisted by arthritis.

"I've been down before," he said. "But I always knew what the trouble was. Now I don't. Even the doctors don't. Something popped inside and that started the hemorrhaging. Soon as it stops they're going to X-ray me."

He talked readily about the halcyon days of hockey. Now and then he forgot a name or a date—no particular sin for a man whose home was his suitcase, whose suitcase travelled nearly everywhere hockey was played.

How did he get the name "Duke"?

"When I was a little kid, maybe, six years old there was this warship named Iron Duke, and well, I guess I used my weight even then. It wasn't hard to imagine other kids running into master Keats and thinking the warship wouldn't have hurt as much."

Kids and men learned over the years what kind of a hockey player he was. At 17 he turned pro, played with the Denny brothers, Cy and Corbett, for the old Toronto. At 18 he was named in the Sporting News of 1915 as a member of the all-time amateur and all-time professional hockey team.

Oldtimers Better Than Current Crop

Later his exploits at centre for Boston, Detroit and Chicago in the National League earned him a niche in Hockey's Hall of Fame.

He laughed as he spoke about his career as a player, playing coach, manager, promoter and owner.

Names rolled off his tongue. . . George and Howard McNamara, Art Duncan, Goldie Progers, Butch Arbour, Art Gagne, Joe Simpson, Bob Trapp. . . the file-mignon of the puck set 30 years or so ago.

Better than the current crop?

"Certainly," he snapped. He stiffened in bed. You could almost see the fire in his face.

"I watched the last Stanley Cup playoff. You could pick out the stars on the fingers of one hand. In the old days everyone in the playoff was a star or he wouldn't have been there."

He sank back on the pillow. Then. . . "I know they say comparisons are odious. But I say class tells, now and then. He ticked off on his fingers those in this year's Stanley Cup who "have it. . . class, strength, aggressiveness. . ."

Howe, Pilote, Mikita, Hull. . .

Hull, he said, was a dandy. "But he made only three, four good rushes a game. Hell, when I was playing you made 15-20 rushes like that or you didn't stay around."

He Still Hasn't Seen His 'Victim'

Hockey was serious business, his bread and butter. Yet humor ran—and still runs—through his memories.

He was playing for Detroit, he said, the year he had turned down an offer to be bench coach. The job had gone to a young fellow named Jack Adams of whom you may have heard.

"We were in Chicago this night and I scored a goal in the first period."

I scored again early in the second period. Everybody thought it was a goal except the referee. I had words with him and he had a few for me—you're out of the game."

"As I was skating off some yahoo yelled at me. I didn't look up but I swung my stick at the mesh. A reporter for the Chicago Daily News wrote the next day that Duke Keats had tried to decapitate Irene Castle McLaughlin, the wife of the owner of the Chicago team."

"Then I picked up another paper and read that I had been fined $500 and suspended indefinitely."

"I didn't think much of that so I wired Bill Tobin, the manager at Chicago: 'Bill, I nearly killed Irene last night so you'd better buy me so both of us will be safe.'"

Did Tobin buy him from Detroit?

"Right away," said Keats. "And do you know I haven't seen Irene to this day!"

Kaline, Colavito Swing Detroit to 5-Game Lead

Are Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito more than a match for Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris? The answer so far this season is a roaring Y-E-S and therein lies much of the story why Detroit Tigers are out in front of the American League with a five-game lead over New York Yankees.

There are other reasons—like pitcher Phil Regan, for example—but the team that beats the Yankees is going to have plenty of muscle. That's what Mantle and Maris gave the Yankees in 1960 and it's what Kaline and Colavito can give the Tigers in pennant-style this year.

Kaline and Colavito collaborated Wednesday to make it look easy as the Tigers completed the demolition of Baltimore Orioles' highly-regarded pitching staff with a 9-1 rout that enabled them to open up a five-game AL lead. Kaline drove in three runs with a double and triple and Colavito knocked in two runs with two singles and a double for the Tigers who outscored the Orioles, 29 to 10, in the three-game sweep.

AVERAGES TELL STORY

This 12 punch is reflected in up-to-date averages which show Kaline out-hitting Mantle, 315 to 307 and Colavito out-hitting Maris, 273 to 217. It comes out to a composite 299 mark for the Detroit stars and 264 for the New York aces with the 35 points that separate their combined averages significantly close to the 48 points separating the teams in the standings.

The Yankees were surprised for the second straight game when Washington Senators topped them, 8-7, while Cleveland Indians beat Boston Red Sox, 10-6, in the other AL game. San Francisco Giants shaded Chicago Cubs, 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates edged St. Louis Cardinals, 4-3, Cincinnati Reds beat Philadelphia Phillies, 2-1, and Los Angeles Dodgers beat Milwaukee Braves, 2-1, in 11 innings in the National League.

Regan, who was 0-4 for Detroit last season, pitched a six-hitter for his fourth straight win as the Tigers handed the Orioles their fifth straight defeat.

BAILEY HAS 3 RBIS

The surprising Senators swept their two-game series with the Yankees and increased their winning streak to five games with a 10-hit attack that included homers by Billy Klaus and Pete Daley.

Ed Bailey drove in three runs with a homer and single to lead the Giants to their fifth consecutive victory although the winning run actually scored when relief pitcher Don Elston yielded a bases-filled walk in the ninth.

Electrohome Crashes U.S. Market

By GORDON BELL

Times Business Editor

Exporting Canadian-manufactured electronic and electrical products to the United States seems at first glance a good deal like carrying coals to Newcastle.

However, one Canadian firm, Dominion Electrohome Industries Ltd., has embarked on such a plan and fully expects it to succeed.

Gordon Bell

Visiting Victoria Electrohome dealers Tuesday, Carl A. Pollock of Toronto, chairman and president of DEIL, said that initial export of stereo-phonograph hi-fi sets and, in some areas, television, is expected to result in U.S. sales of over $750,000 during 1961.

There are about 100 U.S. dealers now handling Electrohome equipment, mostly in the eastern and north central area, but the company expects to have dealers in every state except Alaska and Hawaii by the end of 1962.

As more experience is gained in the U.S. market, Electrohome expects to expand its export line to include portable phonographs, fans, home lighting and heating appliances and other products, Mr. Pollock said.

Main factor in making the Canadian product competitive in the tough and already crowded U.S. market, he said, is good design and quality manufacturing. "Our products are at least as good as the competition and in most cases better," he added.

Electrohome, largest Canadian company producing radio, TV, stereo hi-fi and allied products, is the only Canadian company self-sufficient in design and engineering which Mr. Pollock feels is an important asset in export selling.

Another factor helping to make the Canadian product competitive is that the Canadian sales and excise taxes, amounting to 26 per cent on goods sold in this country will not apply to export goods. This more than offsets the 13 per cent duty charged by the U.S.

Mr. Pollock is enthused not only at the prospects of his own company in the U.S. market but also with the prospect of more Canadian firms doing the same.

"We import about nine per cent of the materials and components in our products from the U.S.," he said. "If we only manage to offset the value of U.S. imports by sales in the U.S. we feel we will be making a real contribution to the solution of the Canadian-U.S. payments balance problem."

"All Canadian firms can't compete in the U.S. market, but if more of them did, Canada's trade deficit with the U.S. would not loom as large as it does now."

Mr. Pollock has been in the forefront of the "Buy Canadian" movement and this brought up the question of Japanese imports which have hit the Canadian electronics industry hard.

Oak Bay Staff Dispute May Go To Conciliation

Possibility of conciliation loomed today in a dispute between Oak Bay municipality and 40 outside employees in the face of council's stand against any changes in the working agreement.

Councillors declared Monday it has no intention of changing last year's contract.

Vancouver Island District Council of Public Employees had asked for a 10 cents an hour wage increase, longer holidays and more service pay. Its first submission was for a 5 per cent increase, which was later modified.

The last request was for a two-year contract to provide for a four cents an hour increase this year and two three-cent increases next year.

Existing pay rates start at $1.86 for laborers and rise to $2.11 for foremen.

Rebels Surrender

JAKARTA (Reuters) — The Indonesian army Tuesday announced the surrender of 815 rebels of the Darul Islam extreme Moslem rebel movement in far north Sumatra. Darul Islam is a Moslem movement pledged to overthrow the government and establish a purely theocratic Islamic state in Indonesia.

BACKACHE May be Warning

Backache is often caused by lazy kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest or that tired-out and heavy-headed feeling may soon follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. buy from Japan but it must be on a broader basis.

He pointed out that import of Japanese transistor radios had almost completely killed off this branch of the Canadian electronics industry. The same thing could happen next in TV if unrestricted Japanese imports are allowed. And then in the hi-fi and other fields.

"It doesn't make sense to allow unrestricted low labor cost Japanese imports to force long-established Canadians into bankruptcy or into becoming mere assemblers of Japanese components," he declared.

Stepping up attempts to sell more B.C. fresh fish in the eastern market, B.C. Packers Ltd. has started shipping by refrigerator truck to Montreal.

A total of 28,000 pounds of fresh halibut and salmon left Vancouver late Tuesday and will be in Montreal Sunday.

night in time for Monday morning shopping.

B.C. Packers hopes that by switching from rail to truck they will get their fish to Montreal—largest fresh fish market in Canada—in better condition at lower cost.

The critical 700 mark in the Dow Jones Industrial Averages was breached easily Wednesday as the booming New York market sent the index up to 705.52. And at Toronto the industrial averages went to a new record high of 588.06 while the base metals also hit a new peak of 198.95.

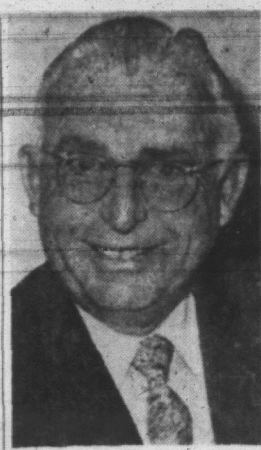

Brokers generally expect further advances, with a few "technical" setbacks, as the ease with which the new peaks were reached indicates growing public confidence in stocks.

An unofficial report has it that Granduc Mines' 500-foot tunnel, which it is hoped will contain a southern extension of the ore body, has been completed and underground drilling started.

The report, circulated by C. M. Oliver and Co. Ltd. in Vancouver, says that company officers seem to be hopeful of results from the drilling program and production plans may be announced this year. Northward extension of the ore body by drilling is also included in Granduc plans.

Last official estimate on Granduc ore was 25.6 million tons running 1.62 copper, but that was back in 1955. To the end of 1960 about $2 million more was spent on the property and no revision of the estimate has yet been disclosed. Informed opinion is that the development program would have been unable to go on without reasonable additions to the ore body. Some Granduc enthusiasts are confidentially mentioning at least 75 million tons of ore.

Sub-Standard Wages Charged

Organized labor has renewed its complaint to Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi that his department pays sub-standard wages to bridge builders.

In a letter to Victoria Labor Council Wednesday, the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council said it has protested departmental construction of "more and more bridges instead of letting them out to tender."

The council, representing construction industry trades, many of which are suffering heavy unemployment, complains that the highways department hires unskilled workers as maintenance men and uses them and rented heavy equipment to erect bridges.

This method of bridge building would not draw such protest if the department used its own maintenance men, the letter indicated.

It reminded Mr. Gagliardi of a fair employment clause in private contract work, a factor now being ignored.

Employment of skilled or organized bridge builders with their efficiency "more than makes up for the extra cost," the labor council was told. Carpenters' delegate James Moffat pointed out the complaint was not new, but the cause becomes more widespread, and gave as an example a new wharf at Campbell River.

'Illegal Strikes' Led to New Act'

VLC OFFICIAL PAYS OWN WAY TO NEW PARTY

Victoria Labor Council will be officially represented at the New Party founding convention at Ottawa's Coliseum July 31-Aug. 4—thanks to the generosity of its secretary.

Voluntary attendance of secretary A. W. Toone was accepted by the council Wednesday night when Mr. Toone offered to go to the convention during his holidays.

Mr. Toone will pay his own expenses at, to and from the historic meeting, asking only that he get an additional week's holiday at a later date.

Population Of B.C. Up By 34,000

B.C.'s population totalled 1,628,000 at Jan. 1 this year, according to a bureau of economics and statistics report issued Wednesday.

This is an increase of 34,000 over the January 1960 figure of 1,594,000.

The report says that between 1941 and 1956 (date of the last Canada-wide census) B.C.'s population showed the highest percentage increase of any province, at 71 per cent.

FORESTS, MINES SOOM

The statistical report for 1960 shows an increase in the value of mineral, forestry and manufacturing products and a decline in the value of agriculture, fishing and construction.

Farm cash income for 1960, says the report, was $122,000,000, a decline of $691,000 from 1959. Value of fisheries production was $32,259,000 against $67,500,000 in 1959. Construction contracts were worth $257,017,000 compared with $282,087,000 in 1959.

Value of forest production in 1960 was $675,000,000, compared with $635,000,000 in 1959.

Mining production increased almost $26,000,000 to $175,300,000.

Manufacturing industry products valued at $2,000,000,000 compared with $1,875,142,125 in 1959.

A breakdown in morality in trade unions was the reason for the introduction of the Trade Union Act of 1959, Vancouver lawyer told the annual meeting of the Victoria Building Industries' Exchange.

Wilfred Heffernan who specializes in industrial-labor laws, said the government took a courageous step in introducing the Act, often referred to as Bill 43.

Prior to passage of the Act, he said, there were many illegal strikes and picketing designed to coerce employers.

"Between 1952 and 1959 there were 41 'quickie' strikes in the lumber industry resulting in a loss of 215 working days," he said. "Since passage of the Act there has been one 'quickie' strike lasting two days."

Mr. Heffernan said when it became apparent there was a breakdown in morality in trade unions, it became necessary to introduce legislation.

SERIOUS EFFECT

"I don't say that morality broke down in all unions," he said. "But it was evident here and there and it was having a serious effect on the economy of the province."

He added that while trade union leaders are publicly denouncing the Act many of them will admit among themselves that the legislation is good and sound.

He accused union leaders of denouncing the Act for political reasons.

The lawyer also disagreed with Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson that the Act unduly restricted unions.

"The Act does not thwart freedom," he said. "It does the very opposite."

He pointed out that the labor legislation has done much to restore economic stability to the province and to protect people who are not involved in strikes.

He urged more than 100 contractors at the meeting to be on their guard against minority groups who have no regard for morality.

"There are noisy minorities," he said, "but they can cause a great deal of damage to society. They are out to destroy the decency and niceties of life."

At the meeting, George Farmer was unanimously elected president of the Exchange.

D. J. Hunter was elected vice-president.

HALF OF CITY FLOODED

LONDON (Reuters) — Half of the city of Archangel is under water through severe flooding of the northern Dvina, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

The flooding resulted from ice blockades, preventing the flow of the river into the White Sea at Archangel. The blockade was cleared by air force bombing and by two icebreakers.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Largest passenger ship currently sailing in B.C. waters, the 42,000-ton P & O Orient liner Oriana, will stop off at Victoria on Monday to embark customs and immigration officials en route to Vancouver from the Antipodes and Hawaii.
Oriana is due to lose her "largest ship" title July 15, when the 45,000-ton Canberra, also a P & O Orient liner, arrives on her maiden voyage.

Wind-up of an intermittent hearing on alleged discrimination against a Chinese motorist has been scheduled for May 26 by city police commission. Lawyers on both sides will sum up arguments on the evidence presented during the hearing which followed arrest Feb. 4 of a Chinese motorist on a careless driving charge.

Victoria city police are looking for a girl they wish to "charge" with returning a lost purse.

If the unidentified girl gives herself up at the city charge office she will find a sizeable reward waiting for her.
Police said the girl found a purse, reported to contain over $1,500, on the causeway in front of the Empress Hotel and turned it over to another woman who gave it to police.

A night watchman who crawled through a hatchway atop a jammed elevator released about seven people at Royal Jubilee Hospital maternity wing Wednesday night.
The passengers were trapped 17 minutes—from 9.09 to 9.26 p.m.—when the mechanism apparently failed.

There was no power failure in the hospital, a spokesman said.
All people in the elevator at the time were visitors. They were stuck at the second-floor level and released when the watchman climbed into the elevator shaft from the third floor, releasing the cage door with his fingers.

Grade 1 enrolment is expected to increase this fall in Greater Victoria schools.
Some 1,997 six-year-olds already have been registered at elementary schools for the coming school year, higher than the figure this time last year, officials said today.

LAST "WHITE PRINCESS" to operate regular service out of Victoria's Inner Harbor, Ss. Princess Marguerite left this morning for Seattle, with CPR wharf and ticket agents aboard. Her first commercial run of the season will leave from Seattle at 8 p.m. Friday. Last year Marguerite and her sister, Princess Patricia, operated the triangle service, Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle, but this year Patricia has replaced the retired Princess Elaine on the Vancouver-Nanaimo run. ## Extra Transport Set for Holiday

Transportation companies are ready, willing and able to handle record crowds over the Victoria Day weekend, and travel-minded vacationers have a wider choice of routes and frequency of service than ever before.

Traditionally the first big summer travel weekend, the holiday marks the re-entry of the CPR into service from the Inner Harbor. Ss. Princess Marguerite, after being laid up all winter, left today for Seattle and will open its once-daily service between the two cities with an 8 a.m. departure from Seattle Friday.
Arrival here is at 11.50 a.m., leaving at 5 p.m. to lay overnight at Seattle.

FIRST FOR FERRIES
This will be the first Victoria Day weekend for the up-and-coming B.C. Government ferries. In expectation of capacity bookings, four extra sailings have been scheduled in addition to the year-round eight trips a day Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen.
Trans-Canada Air Lines, as is its practice in rush periods, will run extra sections of Vancouver and Seattle flights if the traffic warrants.

This is also the practice of Vancouver Island Coach Lines, which is ready to handle all traffic requirements to up-island points, as well as to Vancouver via Nanaimo and Swartz Bay.

SCHEDULE DOUBLED

Washington State Ferries' service on the Sidney-Anacortes run steps up its schedule from one to two trips daily, beginning Friday.

Only transportation company to curtail service over the weekend will be Black Ball Transport, operators of Mv. Coho on the Victoria-Port Angeles service.

The cut is slight and unavoidable; the early morning trip between Port Angeles and Victoria will be skipped Sunday to permit dry-docking and change of propellers before the summer season.

She will miss the 7 a.m. sailing, resume service from Port Angeles at 11 a.m.

In the event of rain the program will be staged in Fraser Street hall.

POLITICAL ISSUE

CCFer Scores Ross Report Author's Plea

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today chided Dr. Mathew Ross for suggesting his report on B.C. mental health services should not become a political issue.

At the same time Mr. Strachan called on the provincial government to publish appendices to the report which he said have been "suppressed."

Mr. Strachan also disputed suggestions in the Ross Report which he said promoted "the philosophy of private medicine."

The Ross Report was made public by the B.C. Government last week. Dr. Ross, head of the American Psychiatric Association which made the survey, said afterwards he hoped the report would not become "a political football."

"It is only by legislative action and the provision of necessary funds that any improvements will be made," said Mr. Strachan.

'LACK OF REALITY'

Mr. Strachan said Dr. Ross remarks "perhaps explain the lack of reality in the suggestions he makes in the final pages of the report."

"It is here that we find the philosophy of the American Medical Association showing through with suggestions that future improvements should be by way of the perpetuation of MSA and 'the philosophy of private medicine.'"

Mr. Strachan said the CCF will demand a full debate on the report at the special legislative session.

"In particular we will demand the publication of the portions of the report which the government has suppressed, for example the full report on the central inspection board of the APA on Woodlands School (for retarded children)."

NO INQUEST IN DROWNING OF CITY TOT

Coroner Dr. J. H. Moore said today there would be no inquest into the drowning death of a three-year-old boy in the Gorge Wednesday morning.

The body of Edmund Lloyd Klann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Klann, Victoria Auto Court, 99 Gorge West, was pulled from the muddy Gorge waters by Saanich police at about 11 a.m.

Efforts to revive the child were unsuccessful and the boy was pronounced dead by Dr. E. L. McEwen.

Police said he had apparently wandered away from his mother and one-year-old sister and fallen down the bank into the water. The bank in the area is steep and muddy.

The Klanns, who came to Victoria from Vancouver only a few days ago, are said to have returned to the mainland late Wednesday afternoon.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: John D. Kendall, 5178 Old West Saanich Road, $40, and licence suspension, careless driving.

Couple's Dog Left In Circling Vessel

RCMP are investigating the mysterious disappearance of a 24-year-old Victoria man and his wife after a small boat was spotted from the air Wednesday circling aimlessly near Sidney Island.

The 14-foot boat's 18-horsepower motor was running, and the lone occupant was a German shepherd dog, property of the missing couple.

Their names are withheld until next of kin are located.

Police have learned the boat left Randall's Landing, on the north shore of Shoal Harbor across from Resthaven Hospital, at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

It was spotted at 8.30 p.m. by a naval reserve aircraft piloted by Lt.-Cmdr. David Slater, commanding officer of squadron VU33, based at Patricia Bay.

PLANE GUIDES BOAT

"It was going around in tight circles," Lt.-Cmdr. Slater said today, "I became curious, flew lower, and saw there was nobody aboard, only the dog."

The naval aviator called control tower at Patricia Bay Airport, which in turn notified Search and Rescue officials at Vancouver. The RCMP patrol boat Sidney was dispatched from Ganges Harbor, and was guided to the still-circling boat by the aircraft.

"There was a tangle of what appeared to be crabbing gear in the boat," said Lt.-Cmdr. Slater. "The motor was still running full bore when the RCMP boat got there."

The boat and dog were towed to Sidney, where police

ANOTHER HOT ONE FRIDAY

Victoria enjoyed its warmest day of the year today.
Full sunshine raised the official thermometer at Gonzales Hill to 69 degrees at noon, up from the 65 recorded Wednesday, and higher temperatures were expected during the afternoon.

Tomorrow should be much the same, sunny and pleasantly warm but beyond that the picture is a little shaky with the trend pointing towards cooler temperatures and some increase in cloud, said Weatherman William Mackie.

Temperatures at official recording stations across lower Vancouver Island Wednesday ranged from 65 to 71 degrees at their high points.

KIDDIES' DAY AT FAIR DRAWS 21,500

A staggering 21,500 persons visited Victoria Jaycees' fair Wednesday. This included more than 5,000 children who took advantage of the special low prices on "kiddies day."

First three days of the fair—usually the poorest for attendance—have seen a total of more than 42,000 visitors this year.

"This is well up on previous years' figures," said fair director Trevor Barlow.

As there seems to be no sign of a break in the summer-like weather, indications are the record-breaking crowds will continue to roll in, he said.

A group of 40 youngsters from the Protestant Orphanage were special guests of the exhibition Wednesday.

They were treated to free rides on the midway, free hot dogs and pop.

Sunset Lodge Model To Be Paraded

Victorians will get a preview of the Salvation Army's Matson Sunset Lodge in the Victoria Day parade Monday when a scale model of the Lodge and the Army Citadel band will be prominent features.

The Army's float will feature the home and other Red Shield work, in connection with the current campaign to raise $245,000 through public, private and industrial subscription.

Fund campaigners are pleased with its progress and can't help being impressed by the number of donations from elderly people, many of them scarcely in a position to give.

One old gentleman humorously treated a $25 donation as a form of insurance.

"I am 91 now and by the time I reach 100 I may be in need of Matson Sunset Lodge," he wrote the committee.

An elderly Sidney couple sent a donation from their small income, recalling they knew John Matson (after whose estate an West Bay home is named) when he had

TWO SPEECHES BY PEARSON

Mr. Pearson will also do a half-hour television program with Mr. Groos at 10 p.m.

This is the second visit the Liberal leader has made to the Victoria area. He came out for a rally at the end of January.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Items to Help Families
Enjoy Open-Air Outings

By PENNY SAVER

With a holiday weekend coming up, many Victoria families are busy making plans for the first boat or camping trip of the season. Item that would certainly be an asset for such an event is the strong plastic gas can brought out by one Canadian manufacturer.

It is perfect for carrying most acids, gas, and it would be ideal as a water carrier.

It has a convenient carrying handle and a capped cover that conceals a pouring spout that can be reversed for easy storage when not in use. Cans come in either white, yellow or red. There are half-gallon ones that sell at $1.29; one-gallon containers priced at $1.69 and two-gallon cans costing $2.75.

Another item open-air enthusiasts will appreciate is the set of aluminum cooking utensils that sells at $3.49. There's a large cooking pot measuring six inches in depth and nine inches in diameter with a lid that doubles as a frying pan when detachable handle that comes with kit, is used.

Also in the set is a smaller covered saucepan, a coffee pot, four cups and four matching aluminum plates.

If Mum is a little reluctant to join a camping trip because she complains that her sleeping bag isn't warm enough, get her one filled with dacron and she'll be the most contented member of the party!

Sleeping bags are very light and fully zippered. They sell at $11.95 and are the warmest kind available (one pound of dacron has equivalent heat value of 13 pounds of wool) with exception of down-filled variety that sells at anywhere from $45 to $60. Each is covered in a green weatherized material.

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today, give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

Women Insist
On Wearing Sari

BOMBAY (CP)—One more victory has been won by the sari, the picturesque female costume of India.

Women workers in a factory near here were asked to turn up in blue overalls. They were told that the flowing five-yard saris they wrap around themselves tended to cause accidents, especially when operating machines.

The women refused. "We are definitely more at home in our saris," they told the factory manager. "Besides, let us not imitate the Chinese who have made their women sexless."

DEAR ABBY

Stick to It, Mom!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with a daughter in high school. The two of us live together. I have to work so I am not at home when she comes home from school.

My daughter is well liked, and has many friends. I have no objection to her girl friends coming over after school, but lately, boys have been coming over. I trust my daughter, but I laid the law down and told her I did not want boys at the house when I am not there. She says that she won't be popular if she can't have the kids over after school. Was I wrong to forbid her to have boys over when I am not home? Or am I old-fashioned?

WORKING MOTHER.
DEAR MOTHER: Your original decision was sound. Don't weaken.

DEAR ABBY: We have a lady in our neighborhood who is making it tough for all the other wives. She didn't get married until she was 28, so she really appreciates having a man, but she is going overboard.

General Foulkes Questions Use Of Force as Instrument of Policy

One of Canada's top-ranking military leaders, General Charles Foulkes, told members of University Women's Club of Victoria, Wednesday evening, he has come to the conclusion "that the use of force as an instrument to attain political aims, must be abandoned."

Speaking at annual dinner meeting of the group, in Holyrood House, General Foulkes pointed out that "this, however, is a long term aim."

"Until abandonment of the use of force is fully accepted," he said, "it is important to seek some stability in the nuclear forces of East and West."

"Should these forces become unbalanced the temptation to use them will become greater." The speaker said he is convinced that "we have gone so far in the production of force and in making it readily available, I seriously question the use of force as an instrument of policy."

He pointed out that "once one of the great powers resorts to the use of force to attain a political objective, it has no other alternative than to continue to use more and more force until the objective is attained or it capitulates. In the process the world may be destroyed."

Canada should strive for the abandonment of the use of force as an instrument of political policy, as its long-term aim, General Foulkes said, and, as a shorter aim, should assist as much as possible in stabilizing the nuclear deterrent and in preventing an unbalance which could lead to a rash act.

It should urge a reporting system on missile and satellite launching to avoid miscalculation of intention; continue and even enhance support to the United Nations in solving world problems by the middle powers, "no matter how awkward and provoking this may be" and, for some time to come, maintain small, well-equipped forces to carry out these tasks.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Olga Jardine and thanked by Miss Marie Riddell.

Retiring president, Mrs. H. R. Turner presided. New officers elected are: President, Mrs. A. H. Gunning; first vice-president, Mrs. J. L. Andrews; second, Mrs. R. A. Fraser; recording secretary, Miss Margaret Lowe; corresponding, Mrs. C. B. Conway; treasurer, Miss Iola Worthington; federation representative, Mrs. Olga Bowes; publicity, Mrs. C. R. A. Coombs; study group convener, Mrs. M. C. M. Mathe-son; social, Mrs. E. G. Tallman.

Special guests at the banquet were the following members of the first graduating class of Victoria College: Misses Marilyn McElmoyle, Elaine Marr, Linda Redden, Roseann Millin, Lillian Easton, Dianne Whitehead, Kathleen Thornberry, Rona Haddon, Cora Browne, Alice Mae Tomlinson, and Edith Schaeffer.

First Woman Admitted In Beaver Club

A gentle grandmother of 29 grandchildren has just become the first woman to be admitted to the all-male Beaver Club.

Maud Watt of Hudson Bay, who neither smokes nor drinks, sipped the fiery Loup-Garou (French for werewolf) and puffed at the calumet at the ceremony held at Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel to become solemnly adopted by the club as "Mother Protector of the Beavers."

Officiating at the ceremony was J. Armand Tremblay, director of fur services, Province of Quebec Department of Fish and Game.

"Through her tireless efforts, Mrs. Watt was responsible for saving the beaver of Rupert House Territory from extinction," he said. "In the 176-year history of the Beaver Club, Mrs. Watt is the first woman to be admitted."

Membership to the original Beaver Club, founded in 1785, was restricted to partners of the North-West Company who had wintered in the North-West. The members, called wintering partners, included the most famous French-Canadian and Scots names in the Canadian fur trade.

In January 1959 the club was reactivated at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel only a few hundred yards from Beaver Hall Hill, where its original members often met. The club's honorary wintering partners now include a reigning monarch, the King of Nepal, statesmen, film stars, business tycoons — and, by adoption, Mrs. Maud Watt.

'JACKIE' WINS ALL HEARTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. John Fitzgerald Kennedy flies home to Washington today from a capital she captured with charm.

In 4½ hours "Jackie" Kennedy captivated Ottawa officials, sent its social set into a new whirl and drew public crowds unmatched even in past visits by royalty.

Everyone who met or saw the president's wife praised her to the skies. Her wardrobe drew critical raves.

At no point did she show signs of fatigue but on two occasions she begged off commitments because of weariness.

"Her pictures don't do her justice at all," said one woman after a chat with the 31-year-old "first lady."

"Photographs can't catch the shine in her eyes and that sweet air of reserve."

Seventh Survey of Women in Public Life Covers All Fields of Endeavor

By The Canadian Press

At the risk of initiating a controversy, it must be said that—in the sphere of politics at least—the women of Ontario and Western Canada have it all over their more easterly sisters.

Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in its seventh annual "authoritative list of women in public life in Canada," didn't set out to make that point but that's what the figures show.

The list names 63 women holding high elective office in the four western provinces. Ontario has another 52.

They include members of Parliament, members of legislative assemblies, mayors, reeves, aldermen and councillors.

But from the eastern Ontario boundary to the Atlantic Ocean there are only seven such women.

Ontario has the only women MPs and it has four, including one cabinet minister, Mrs. Ellen Fairclough of Hamilton, minister of citizenship and immigration.

B.C. IS SECOND

British Columbia comes second with three MLAs, three mayors and 16 aldermen-councillors.

Saskatchewan has three MLAs and 15 aldermen-councillors and Alberta has three MLAs, one mayor and 13 women on municipal councils.

Manitoba lists two members of the legislature and four in municipal councils.

There is only one woman MLA east of Manitoba, Mrs. Gladys N. Porter, MBE, of Kentville, elected last year as the first woman member of the Nova Scotia house. That province lists two town councillors.

Quebec and Newfoundland have no women MPs, MLAs, mayors or councillors.

There are seven women senators, two from Quebec and one each from B.C., Manitoba, Ontario, P.E.I. and New Brunswick.

The federation's list contains hundreds of names and ranges across such categories as school trustees, members of national, provincial and municipal boards and commissions, medical health officers, judges, justices of the peace, court registrars and clerks, notaries public and commissioners.

INDIAN CHIEFS

Women chiefs and councillors of Indian bands are listed, also women members of university senates and boards of regents.

Kennedys Give Return Dinner At U.S. Ambassador's Home

OTTAWA (CP)—President Kennedy and his wife spent the last night of their Ottawa visit entertaining 16 guests at a fillet mignon dinner in the United States ambassador's residence.

There was an informal note to Wednesday night's affair with no speech-making planned.

Probably the most exciting event of the evening — there were no press observers — was the appearance of Mrs. Kennedy in a long evening gown of pink ribbed silk. It is sleeveless with a bateau neck and three tiers of ruffles at the bottom.

The gown has already been described as the hit of Mrs. Kennedy's wardrobe, specially designed for her Ottawa trip by Oleg Cassini.

Its ruffles and flounces are in sharp contrast to the Grecian simplicity of the white silk sheath she wore at Governor-General Vanier's state dinner Tuesday night.

GREETED VANIERS

The president and his attractive wife greeted Gen. Vanier and Mme. Vanier on the steps of Ambassador Livingston Merchant's official residence, a stately structure built on a cliff overlooking the Ottawa River. Mme. Vanier wore a gown of ice blue satin.

Other guests were received in the drawing room before dinner in the green and beige dining room. They included Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, Opposition Leader Pearson, Speaker Mark Drouin of the Senate, Speaker Roland Michener of the Commons, A. D. P. Heeney, Canadian ambassador to Washington, and their wives.

Following the meal, which included turtle soup, cold salmon and strawberry tarts in addition to the steaks, the women retired to the drawing room while the men lingered over brandy and cigars.

Some cabinet ministers dined at the residence of another U.S. embassy official and came to Mr. Livingston's home later for an informal visit.

A List of Foods and Their Calories—Read It and Weep

Do you wonder why you gain weight when you eat three medium-sized meals a day and the calorie count they give you is very conservative? Maybe you only eat two meals a day and still add pounds.

Then consider the extras, the little bits which do not seem to mean much—a taste of this or that from the refrigerator, or tasting while cooking. It is amazing how these count up!

Also, the following items are not illegal or immoral—but they ARE fattening! They say that the bearer of bad news is very much disliked. I hope you will forgive me.

One chocolate-soda, 400 calories.

One chocolate malted milk shake, 450 calories.

One glass of beer, 110 calories.

One piece of lemon meringue pie, 350 calories (three inches at the circumference).

Twelve average-sized potato chips, 100 calories.

Potato salad, one-half cup, 200 calories.

One inch cube of cheese, 100 calories.

Peanut butter, 100 calories.

Peanuts (20), 100 calories.

Candy bars, 200 to 400 calories.

Gin, one ounce, 80 calories.

Bourbon, one ounce, 85 calories.

Scotch, one ounce, 75 calories.

I am not even mentioning cream sauces and salad oils and dressings or gravy or fried foods, but this may give you some hint as to why you gain weight.

If you would like to have my calorie-chart, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Prisoner for Tractor Offer Made by Castro

By JACK BEST

HAVANA (CP) — Premier Fidel Castro has offered to exchange prisoners captured in the April 17 Cuban invasion for bulldozers or tractors.

He said Wednesday night he would exchange the prisoners for 500 bulldozers or a quantity of tractors.

If the offer is not accepted, the captives would be put to work—"hard, hard" work—digging trenches and rebuilding what they destroyed, the premier said.

"We are going to make the invader prisoners work for their keep, so that they know what hard work is."

ISSUED WARNING
Castro warned, however, in a 2½-hour television speech to a small farmers' rally 10 miles south of Havana, that "murderers" among those captured will not be exchanged. All the "murderers" will face revolutionary tribunals.

Castro directed the offer at the United States government—which he said masterminded last month's unsuccessful invasion attempt in Cochinos Bay—

Bay of Pigs.

Castro said there was a historical precedent for what he proposed: At the time of the Napoleonic war, Spain exchanged French soldiers for pigs. But Cuba was more refined; she would take tractors instead of pigs.

The premier seemed serious in his offer. He introduced the subject by saying the government intended to make captives work to support themselves. Until now they had been living in prison the life of "counter-revolutionaries"—eating but not working.

"Enough of that," he said. The statement touched off a loud demonstration on the fair grounds where the meeting was held, with organized shouts of "let them work!" continuing for several minutes.

'Neutrals' to Meet

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)—President Sukarno of Indonesia and President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana have agreed on the idea of convening a conference of uncommitted nations "in the immediate future." It was announced Tuesday at the end of the Asian leader's three-day visit.

SANCTIONS PROPOSED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed a resolution Wednesday urging the Organization of American States to impose economic sanctions on Cuba.

The resolution, which goes to the Senate, describes Cuba under Premier Fidel Castro as "a base and staging area for Communist subversive activity throughout the hemisphere."

The resolution is an expression of opinion having no legal force.

PLEASURE AFLOAT

By DON INGHAM

Right Trees Scarce
For Indian Canoes

Next to the totem pole, the dugout canoe probably is the best example of the skill of native Pacific coast Indians in working with wood.

There is, though, a big difference, as described by Chief Underwood of East Saanich. While the totem pole is a work of history and art, the canoe is purely functional, and was the mainstay of life on this coast before the white man's arrival.

A builder himself, in addition to being chief of the Tsaut Band in East Saanich and one of the sages of the Saanich Indian community, he knows all there is to know about the canoe maker's craft.

"I'm not going to tell you the secrets that are my own, like those any other builder has," he told me in an interview at his home on Mount Newton Cross Road, "but there is no secret about the methods we use."

His first subject was the big 11-paddle racing canoe, such as those seen at the recent Tsartlip sports, and which will be on show here at the Songhees festival this weekend.

No-War Connection

"I think we had better get that 'war canoe' name straightened out," he said. "They are called war canoes by white men, but they never had anything to do with war. They are racing craft and nothing else."

"Our people rarely went to war, but if they had they would have gone in the big canoes they used for fishing and transport. They were just workboats."

no secret method

He said the racing canoe, considered the ultimate in the art of building, starts with the selection by the builder of the proper tree.

(Notice his use of the word "builder". This is because there is no Indian counterpart for a designer, who will make a plan, and the shipwright, who transforms the plan into a finished hull. The Indian "builder" is more of a sculptor than anything else, who sees the form he desires in his mind's eye, then shapes it himself, with, of course, the help of others. He uses neither square nor rule, but depends only on his judgment and skill.)

The "proper tree" no longer is easy to find, Chief Underwood said. What the builder seeks is a tall, straight, western red cedar which is big enough in diameter to give him the maximum 36 inches of beam he will want in the canoe.

Location Important

"If the tree has grown in a swamp, or at the bottom of a hollow, it will have matured rapidly and will be of coarse grain," he said. "Such wood will make a heavy canoe, which just won't lift to the thrust of the paddles."

"But if the tree has had 'dry feet' always, the grain will be fine, the canoe will be light, and it will travel better."

The builder may search for a year for the right tree," he said. "In the old days we had them on our own lands, but these now have been logged off, and the only chance we have of getting one big enough is through the logging company, who will make a plan, and the shipwright, who transforms the plan into a finished hull. The Indian "builder" is more of a sculptor than anything else, who sees the form he desires in his mind's eye, then shapes it himself, with, of (Next week Chief Underwood will describe the actual construction of the canoe, from standing tree to finished craft.)

Kootenay
Gas System
Approved

A Public Utilities Commission certificate has been awarded to a firm which plans a $3,000,000 natural gas distribution system in the Kootenay area, it was announced Tuesday.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black said the cabinet has approved the certificate, awarded to Kootenay Gas Utilities Ltd.

The distribution system will take gas from the Alberta Natural Gas Co. pipeline which runs across the southeast corner of the province between Alberta and the U.S.

The system will serve the Cranbrook area, Fernie and Creston. Gas rates are expected to average 98 cents per thousand cubic feet.

told the CBC Tuesday it won't sponsor a TV comedy, The Conquest of Cobbletown, which had been planned for the Sunday night series, General Motors Presents.

But, the play is already on tape, a CBC spokesman said Tuesday night, and GM will have to bear its share of the production costs. The program will go on as planned this Sunday — without GM commercials.

The play, written by Leslie McFarlane, lampoons Canadian nationalism and while program content is CBC's exclusive concern, the auto firm decided some people might forget this fact.

CBC EXPRESSES REGRETS.
A CBC announcement said "We regret that General Motors of Canada feel they have reason to withdraw their sponsorship on this occasion. However, they have never suggested that the play should not be broadcast by the CBC."

A statement signed by D. M. McKinnon, GM's advertising manager, said the firm, while it has an all-Canadian management, is part of a large U.S. corporation. "For this reason, we consider that it would be ill-mannered of us to associate our name with a television program that pokes fun at Canadian nationalism."

"At the same time, because of the play's ending, the impression could be given that General Motors was attempting to use television entertainment as a propaganda vehicle to present a case for ownership of Canadian companies."

Mr. McKinnon said GM felt the show should not be carried or not it carried GM commercials. But a CBC spokesman in the GM time slot, whether said the show will go on, "on a substantiating basis."

Four movies were banned in Norway last year and six the year before, mainly because they featured crime and horror.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

BY JACK HUTTON
Toronto Telegram News Service

The Russian teenager in Canada today must ask himself one question every so often: how do I compare with the Russian teen-ager?

Does Igor study more mathematics and science? Does he do more homework? Does he ever find school a boring place as we sometimes do?

Since three Russian teachers have just finished a cross-Canada tour of our schools, we can look forward to their official estimate of us in a short time. But, as a reporter who one year ago spent two weeks in the U.S.S.R. chatting with students and teachers, I'd like to give my own conclusion first:

No Generalities
Although there is some question about whether Russian students study more science and mathematics than we do, the visitor to Russia realizes immediately that teen-agers are the same everywhere. It's impossible to generalize about them—just as it is about adults.

I'll never forget the shock of having a young chap with glasses pluck at my elbow and ask: "Please, have you any Count Basie records? Or maybe Benny Goodman, Stan Kenton ...?"

During my second week in Moscow, I enjoyed playing piano with an extremely progressive jazz group, which made my playing sound like chopsticks. (They told me Leningrad was the "hotbed" of Dixieland.)

Eight Years' Study
If you were born in Russia today, you would look forward to starting school at the age of 7. The length of the elementary and secondary school system is 11 years of which you would have to complete eight. (The standard university course is five years.)

The important thing, of course, is that everything depends on the student—both in Russia and here. It's up to the individual, no matter where one is, to do what one wants with the opportunities available.

What about homework? The average Russian student (who goes to school Saturday mornings, by the way) can expect about four hours of homework nightly by Grade 10. But this, of course, varies with the student.

Political Training
Remember, too, that the Russian student goes through a political indoctrination that would stagger a Canadian student. My impression was that it started with kindergarten—and the Russian teen-ager never dreams of questioning his teachers later.

Most of us rarely realize how lucky we are. The three Russian teachers who visited Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Toronto and Vancouver were repeatedly impressed by the modern, beautiful schools they saw.

My point (and I'm sorry if I sound preachy this week) is that adults who shout that young people are falling down are all wet. I'll pick the Canadian teen-ager ahead of any other country any day.

Just remember this the next time you hear a politician who somehow makes it sound as if teen-agers were the front line of the Cold War between East and West today.

Saving Habits
High school students in British Columbia have set an example for the rest of Canada in a province-wide savings program that would put many adults to shame.

'MOUNTAIN OF JUNK'

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven army officers and 1,150 civilian workers pull enough junk out of New York harbor each year to build a mountain a block wide and 15 times as high as the Empire State building. Recent hauls included the carcass of a giraffe and a grand piano. Col. Charles M. Duke of the army engineer district of New York came up with these facts Tuesday during a tour of the harbor.

VLC ELECTS 4 OFFICERS

'Political Action Here'

17 SIGN ATOM PROTEST

Seventeen names out of 30 present were added to a national petition against atomic weapons when a list was circulated at Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday.

The Canadian Committee for the Control of Radiation Hazards is backed by such men as Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, B.C. Power Commission chairman; Dr. Brook Chisholm, former world health director, and Dr. Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto.

Four executive vacancies were filled in Victoria Labor Council by-election by 30 delegates Wednesday.

The small attendance, representing 21 affiliated labor organizations, was blamed by council secretary A. W. Toome on conflicting election meetings.

Vic Midgley, carpenter's union, was elected second vice-president, replacing Edwin Haw, of the non-affiliated IWA.

Fred Bevis, electrician's union, was named chairman of the political education committee after volunteering to resign as organizing committee head in trade.

Retail clerk's union delegate John Nicol was elected chairman of the education committee.

The meeting failed to nominate a chairman of the organizing committee and council president Robert Barrie appointed pro tem, William Gauld, laundry workers' delegate and Canadian Labor Congress representative.

Before the election, Mr. Bevis told delegates with regard to the New Party:

"Political action is here and it's here to stay... despite the rocks that have been thrown. It's no white elephant—it's here."

He said 600 local unions across Canada have placed themselves behind the party to date and recommended Victoria locals follow.

Mr. Gauld said volunteers from organized labor are working as drivers, canvassers and giving financial support to the New Party candidate in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election.

Before the election, Mr. Bevis told delegates with regard to the New Party:

"Political action is here and it's here to stay... despite the rocks that have been thrown. It's no white elephant—it's here."

GEORGE HEES
... 'some show'

Tory Candidate Good Reeve Says Trade Minister

Trade Minister George Hees gave a 20-minute pep talk and Conservative ladies "poured" from silver teapots Wednesday at what party officials called "a reception" in Esquimalt-Saanich.

About 100 persons lined up to shake Mr. Hees' hand at the affair in Colwood Community Club.

After short speeches by Conservative by-election candidate George Chatterton, would-be nominee Gowan Guest and Mr. Hees, tea and cakes were served across crisp white tablecloths decorated with silver candlesticks.

If was a low-key approach to the by-election; quiet, orderly, with flowers and gay hats and with special "invitations" mailed to guests.

MADE GOOD REEVE

Mr. Hees said Mr. Chatterton should be elected because "he's done a good job as reeve" and because it is good to have MPs "who know the cabinet on a first-name basis."

But, he warned, "Parties in opposition have a strong advantage in a by-election."

It was extremely important, to work hard so that the best man won.

"I don't want the kind of thing to happen here that happened in Peterborough a few months ago," said Mr. Hees.

Walter Pitman of the New Party won a by-election there in October.

Mr. Hees said the Conservative "was the best of the four candidates."

But the New Party won because they "outworked us 10 to one."

"An awful lot of inferior candidates have been elected by hard work," said Mr. Hees. "It's terribly important to do a great deal of work to make absolutely sure you get the right man," he said.

Mr. Chatterton told the crowd he was pleased to see in the Times the results of an Esquimalt-Saanich survey "taken by another party."

(The survey showed the Liberals' ahead in popularity). "I've become concerned about my own supporters trying to please me by telling me I couldn't lose," he added.

"If all those who say they want to see me win do turn out to the polls, I feel I shall win and our cause will succeed."

Fair Eulogized As Job Creator

Trade Minister George Hees warmly praised Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday, for its work in staging the annual exhibition.

"This is really some show," said Mr. Hees, who was guest speaker at a luncheon in the Empress Hotel for exhibitors at the fair.

The fair, he said, is a "very practical way to help merchants in this area by stimulating sales."

"One of the fundamental reasons for making sales is so that you can provide jobs for people in the country," he said.

A "headwind" being faced by both Canada and the U.S. today is the economic challenge of war-devastated countries in Europe and Asia.

In the immediate post-war years, while those countries were struggling, Canada and the U.S. had an easy time, Mr. Hees said.

"All of a sudden, the honeymoon is over—it's over forever," he said.

"We must work harder, produce harder and sell harder or else we are going to slip."

"In order to get our employment up we have got to do much more of the things you are doing right here in Victoria," said Mr. Hees.

Guest of honor at the luncheon was Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes. Also present were Mayor Percy Scurrell and Mrs. Scurrell, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele and Mrs. Wurtele, and Saanich Reeve George Chatterton and Mrs. Chatterton.

Social Work Led Hamilton To Politics

New Party candidate Glen Hamilton told a meeting of about 25 of his supporters at Langford Wednesday that he entered politics because as a social worker he was "fed up with having to deal with the mouldering sores of the country."

"There is a lack of human concern in the affairs of this country," he said.

"Over the last 60 years we have undergone a very rapid social change yet our problem is that we have governments and politicians still geared to the days of the model T car. This is why we need the New Party," he said.

SHIP SUBSIDY HIT

Mr. Hamilton criticized the proposed 40 per cent federal subsidy for shipbuilding because it will now make it impossible for Canada to have her own merchant marine.

Furthermore, he said, half of the subsidy will go out of Canada to the countries who supply the steel, engines, etc. that go into ships.

On the topic of defence, Mr. Hamilton said thinking in the old terms of national defence is out of date.

"We have reached a point in human evolution where war as an instrument of national policy with any nation is completely obsolete," he said.

"No nation has the right to take the law into its own hands," he declared.

Mr. Hamilton urged that Canada immediately create a well-equipped, mobile force and place it at the disposal of the United Nations for police purposes.

Speaking in support of Mr. Hamilton was Pat O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Labor Council Cuts Summer Meetings

STATEMENT BY JFK, DIF

Leaders Agree On Cuba Danger

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Kennedy issued a joint communique today reporting agreement in the view that the "alignment of a regime in the western hemisphere with Communist leadership abroad was a matter for serious concern."

Kennedy flew back to Washington today after a two-day visit. The communique ranged over subjects discussed in the Ottawa talks of the two leaders. The Cuban regime of Fidel Castro was not mentioned by name, but the communique said in dealing with Latin American affairs:

"The president and the prime minister discussed the need for accelerating economic progress and social reform throughout the hemisphere, as well as the need to strengthen the strong hemispheric trend away from dictatorship and toward democracy."

"They recognized that these objectives are closely related."

"They were in accord that the alignment of a regime in the western hemisphere with Communist leadership abroad was a matter for serious concern, threatening as it did the peaceful and democratic evolution of the Latin American peoples. The prime minister assured the president of Canada's continued and increasing interest in inter-American affairs."

The two leaders were reported as reaffirming the objective of negotiating at Geneva a truly independent and neutral Laos.

Regarding the Southeast Asian country, the communique said:

"In this connection they examined the experience of the international control and supervisory commission created by the Geneva accords of 1954."

"They agreed that the development of and general support for effective control machinery represented a key element in a settlement of the Laos situation and an essential ingredient in achieving peace and stability in Southeast Asia."

Agreement was stated by Mr. Diefenbaker and the visiting president on their confidence in the United Nations, and they reaffirmed that the goal sought by both Canada and the United States is a secure world order in which there can be general disarmament under effective controls.

Said the communique, in conclusion:

"To banish the scourge of war, to improve the human lot, to defend and to enlarge the area of freedom, to assist peoples less privileged than our own—these are aims that bind together Canada and the United States and which, with other allies and friends, our two countries will, jointly and steadfastly, pursue."

Honors Received By Most

By JOHN MIKA and
LESLIE MILLIN

Victoria College today proudly announced results of 1961 examinations including 33 degrees won by its first graduating class.

Almost all the graduates in arts, science and education courses took first or second class honor standings.

Fourteen other students taking some fourth year subjects passed exams to win credits towards their degrees. Some likely will qualify for sheepskins after filling in gaps at summer school.

David George Alexander, of Nanaimo, headed the graduating class with an average 89.8 per cent. Runner-up was Brian G. Carr-Harris, 1141 Transit, with an average 84.2 per cent.

HIGH MARKINGS

Leaders of the third year arts and science class were: Michael S. D. Horn, 523 Harbinger, with 90 per cent; and Howard Lim, 4521 Cheeseman, close behind with 89.3 per cent.

Heading the second year arts and science class were: Anthony G. Wilden, 3015 Quadra, with 92 per cent; and Sheila M. MacEwan, Duncan, with 84.9 per cent.

Top two in first year arts, and science were: Terrence C. Leung, 1346 Harrison, with 93.4 per cent; and John H. Sargent, 3333 Henderson, with 88.9 per cent.

Edwin H. Neave, Vancouver, led the first year commerce and business administration class with 88.9 per cent.

Mr. Alexander graduated from Nanaimo Senior High School and entered Victoria College in 1957. Last year he won the Victoria Gas Company centennial scholarship and stood second in his class with an 87.3 per cent average. He has been awarded a $1,500 Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship for post-graduate study in history at the University of Washington during the coming year.

Mr. Carr-Harris, a graduate of Oak Bay High School, stood third in his class last year with an average 85.3 per cent and won a P. H. B. Dawson bursary.

He will take post-graduate study at the University of B.C. in geography where he has been appointed a laboratory assistant.

Mr. Horn, a graduate of Victoria High School, led the first year arts and science class in 1959 with a 93.3 average. The following year he stood second in his class. One of a family of six boys, he came to Canada nine years ago from Holland.

Mr. Lim has won first-class standing consistently in high school and last year at the college when he was awarded the Weston Bakeries Scholarship. He is majoring in psychology.

FIGHT AGAINST ODDS

A brilliant success story against heavy odds lies behind Mr. Wilden's first place standing in the second year class. Married with two children, he came to British Columbia from England seven years ago when he was 18 and worked in various communities of the province as an automotive parts man.

He took his Grade 13 by co-

Soviet Laos Bid Studied by West

GENEVA (Reuters)—The big three Western powers conferred today on a veto-laden Soviet proposal for guaranteeing the neutrality of Laos while the right-wing Laos government demanded a place at the conference here for five more political factions.

Roving American ambassador Averill Harriman met with British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville before the resumption of the 14-nation talks on the Southeast Asia kingdom.

Harriman took the place of State Secretary Dean Rusk, who flew to Bern to pay a courtesy call on Swiss government officials. He returned for the afternoon session of the conference. Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was due to be the main speaker at the session.

A spokesman for the government said the seating of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao organization at the talks had placed Laotian representation on a political basis and it was therefore logical to bring in all shades of political opinion.

He said his group would continue to boycott the talks even if the five right-wing groups were seated.

... similar to the recent international geophysical year - be set aside for a full study of the demilitarization and neutralization of outer space.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke to a Dalhousie University convocation at which he received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

"Mankind must act now to preserve outer space for peaceful purposes, for it will not be long before international control will be imposed," he said.

Outer space would be handed over to other than peaceful research purposes. Mounting of armaments on satellites should be outlawed.

The international space agency would have to have inspection and control powers to ensure outer space was used only for scientific and peaceful purposes. Inspection and control would be necessary to see new weapons were not used which might put all mankind under the threat of sudden destruction.

Leaders Agree On Cuba Danger

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Kennedy issued a joint communique today reporting agreement in the view that the "alignment of a regime in the western hemisphere with Communist leadership abroad was a matter for serious concern."

Kennedy flew back to Washington today after a two-day visit. The communique ranged over subjects discussed in the Ottawa talks of the two leaders. The Cuban regime of Fidel Castro was not mentioned by name, but the communique said in dealing with Latin American affairs:

"The president and the prime minister discussed the need for accelerating economic progress and social reform throughout the hemisphere, as well as the need to strengthen the strong hemispheric trend away from dictatorship and toward democracy.

"They recognized that these objectives are closely related. They were in accord that the alignment of a regime in the western hemisphere with Communist leadership abroad was a matter for serious concern, threatening as it did the peaceful and democratic evolution of the Latin American peoples. The prime minister assured the president of Canada's continued and increasing interest in inter-American affairs."

The two leaders were reported as reaffirming the objective of negotiating at Geneva a truly independent and neutral Laos. Regarding the Southeast Asian country, the communique said:

"In this connection they examined the experience of the international control and supervisory commission created by the Geneva accords of 1954. They agreed that the development of and general support for effective control machinery represented a key element in a settlement of the Laos situation and an essential ingredient in achieving peace and stability in Southeast Asia."

Agreement was stated by Mr. Diefenbaker and the visiting president on their confidence in the United Nations, and they reaffirmed that the goal sought by both Canada and the United States is a secure world order in which there can be general disarmament under effective controls. Said the communique, in conclusion:

"To banish the scourge of war, to improve the human lot, to defend and to enlarge the area of freedom, to assist peoples less privileged than our own — these are aims that bind together Canada and the United States and which, with other allies and friends, our two countries will, jointly and steadfastly, pursue."

who flew to Bern to pay a courtesy call on Swiss government officials. He returned for the afternoon session of the conference. Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was due to be the main speaker at the session.

A spokesman for the government said the seating of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao organization at the talks had placed Laotian representation on a political basis and it was therefore logical to bring in all shades of political opinion. He said his group would continue to boycott the talks even if the five right-wing groups were seated.

Collegians Win Honors

Results Page 7

By JOHN MIKA and LESLIE MILLIN

Victoria College today proudly announced results of 1961 examinations including 33 degrees won by its first-graduating class.

Almost all the graduates in arts, science and education courses took first or second class honor standings.

Fourteen other students taking some fourth year subjects passed exams to win credits towards their degrees. Some likely will qualify for sheepskins after filling in gaps at summer school.

David George Alexander, of Nanaimo, headed the graduating class with an average 89.8 per cent. Runner-up was Brian G. Carr-Harris, 1141 Transit, with an average 84.2 per cent.

HIGH MARKINGS

Leaders of the third year arts and science class were: Michiel S. D. Horn, 323 Harbinger, with 90 per cent; and Howard Lim, 4521 Cheeseman, close behind with 89.3 per cent.

Heading the second year arts and science class were: Anthony G. Wilden, 3015 Quadra, with 92 per cent; and Sheila M. MacEwan, Duncan, with 84.9 per cent.

Top two in first year arts and science were: Terrence C. Leung, 1346 Harrison, with 93.4 per cent; and John H. Sargent, 3333 Henderson, with 88.9 per cent.

Edwin H. Neave, Vancouver, led the first year commerce and business administration class with 88.9 per cent.

Mr. Alexander graduated from Nanaimo Senior High School and entered Victoria College in 1957. Last year he won the Victoria Gas Company centennial scholarship.

and stood second in his class with an 87.3 per cent average. He has been awarded a $1,500 Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship for post-graduate study in history at the University of Washington during the coming year.

Mr. Carr-Harris, a graduate of Oak Bay High School, stood third in his class last year with an average 85.3 per cent and won a P. H. B. Dawson bursary.

He will take post-graduate study at the University of B.C. in geography where he has been appointed a laboratory assistant.

Mr. Horn, a graduate of Victoria High School, led the first year arts and science class in 1959 with a 93.3 average. The following year he stood second in his class. One of a family of six boys, he came to Canada nine years ago from Holland.

Mr. Lim has won first-class standing consistently in high school and last year at the college when he was awarded the Weston Bakerie's Scholarship. He is majoring in psychology.

A brilliant success story against heavy odds lies behind Mr. Wilden's first place standing in the second year class. Married with two children, he came to British Columbia from England seven years ago when he was 18 and worked in various communities of the province as an automotive parts man.

Junta Tightens Grip on S. Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters) — A military junta tightened its grip on this South Korean capital today after forcing the resignation of Premier John Chang and his government.

Chang came out of hiding and agreed to resign with his cabinet when it became apparent that all the Korean armed services had thrown their support behind the leaders of the coup against his government on Tuesday.

Their backing quashed American and United Nations attempts to have them oppose the coup and restore Chang's government to power. After Chang had given himself up, the junta said it had won the support of all the Korean armed services—the army, navy, air force and marines—at a meeting of service chiefs Wednesday night.

B.C. Asks Action Of PNR Chiefs

The B.C. government has cabled Pacific Northern Railway promoters asking if they plan to go ahead, or default in six days time.

Transport Minister Earle Westwood said today he is awaiting word from directors of the company, set up by the associates of Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren with plans for a 700-mile line to the Yukon border.

Under the Railway Act they could lose government approval for the project and forfeit all rights by next Wednesday, said Mr. Westwood.

The act says that bona fide and continuous construction must be carried out within a year of a railway's incorporation.

The PNR was incorporated May 24, 1960.

Not more than a minimum of clearing work has been done near Summit Lake, start of the proposed line.

"It's getting kind of close," said Mr. Westwood.

NO EXTENSION ASKED

He said that the company can win an extension from the government, but so far has not asked for one. He said he had the power to grant the extension anyway, but he is waiting to hear from the company.

The key to the PNR's plans is probably in the U.S., which is expected to make a policy decision shortly on the necessity of a railroad to Alaska for reasons of defence.

The route of the PNR—whether developed by that company or anyone else—would be part of the overall Washington-to-Alaska line.

It has been suggested that if the PNR lets its scheme slide, the government-owned PCE railway might take over as long as the U.S. would participate in a through route to Alaska.

However, there are no official PNR spokesmen in B.C. at the moment. Company president Bernard Gore is in England and other directors are in Montreal and Toronto.

SOCRED MEETING AT LUXTON

Delay of Columbia Power Not B.C.'s Fault—Kiernan

There is "no delay" by British Columbia in fulfilling its share of the Columbia power project, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan told an audience of 14 Wednesday night at Luxton Hall.

Speaking in support of George Hahn, Social Credit candidate in the May 29 Esquimalt-Saanich federal by-election, he said the province actually had gone ahead with its work just as quickly as possible, "despite what they say in Ottawa."

"There were three plans affecting B.C., and it was not until the agreement was reached in January that the province knew which of the three would be chosen," he said in defence against charges that the province is dragging its feet on the project.

Mr. Hahn reiterated his demand for a larger share for British Columbia in the federal national defence and public works contracts.

"With 10 per cent of the population, surely we deserve 5 per cent of the contracts instead of the 1 1/2 to 2 per cent we get now," Mr. Hahn said.

"We are better off than the Maritimes, and don't want to take business from them, but I abhor seeing Ontario and Quebec getting the lion's share, and well above their proportion of these contracts."

He defended his candidacy here although he comes from Surrey, where he resigned as reeve to take on the campaign.

"That would not excuse us from not doing our best about unemployment," despite Ottawa's blundering," he said, listing B.C. Hydro, PGE Railway, and the government ferry system as projects which have furthered development of the province.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, after disposing of two over-exuberant hecklers, cited the debt reduction program of the provincial government, revision of pension acts, and its economic policies as examples of what a Social Credit government can do.
